ILLINOIS'S FIRST JUSTICES OF THE PEACE - BY LOWELL M. VOLKEL

Justices of the Peace were the most important local judicial officials in early nineteenth century Illinois. Various and sundry duties came under their jurisdiction. Their Solomonic wisdom dispensed justice in cases ranging from settling debt claims up to one hundred dollars to meting out fines for those guilty of any noise, rout or amusement on the Sabbath. The first justices were commissioned by Governor Shadrach Bond from recommendations forwarded to him from the General Assembly. The following men served as the first Illinois justices of the peace. The names below are as they appear in the Executive Record (Records located in Illinois State Archives), Vol. 1, Pages 3 through 8. The variations in spellings and additional notes in parentheses come from the original House of Representatives lists of recommendations. There is no additional biographical data in these records.

PIONEER HISTORY OF ILLINOIS.

Blair agreed further that arrangements would be made so that the court in June of the above year may be held in Belleville. George Blair had the honor to give the name of Belleville to the town and county-seat of St. Clair County. The court of St. Clair County, on August 8, 1814, recognized the name of Belleville and dated their sessions ever after at it. Belleville is a French word, which in English means a fine city, and it has realized the name. Edwardsville was located about the same time and was made the county-seat of Madison County. It has remained the seat of justice of that county to the present time. I recollect of attending the court there in an old fort made by Thomas Kirkpatrick near the Cahokia Creek, late in the fall of 1814. The house which is the most conspicuous for its age and public services in Belleville is the hotel built by James Tannahill in 1816. It was in pioneer times the hotel de ville of Belleville. It stands on the west side of the public-square—grows with the country and is now more popular than ever.

Thomas Higgins was born in Barren County, Ky., in 1790. He came to Illinois with his relatives in 1807, and located on Silver Creek, St. Clair County, near his folks, the Bradshys. He received a very limited education, as his parents were in humble circumstances and he himself had not much love for a school-house. He possessed a good mind, but he would in defiance of danger or anything else, employ himself in harmless mischief and merriment. He had nothing savage or cruel in his disposition, yet he was as brave a man as ever existed. He was in his manhood very strong, muscular, and active. He was not so very tall, but compactly formed for great strength and activity. During the whole war of 1812, he was actively engaged on the frontiers in defending the settlements. I personally knew him to be a member of the company commanded by Capt. William B. Whiteside in most of the war. In 1814, he joined another company,* and was one of the party under the command of Lieut. John Journey at Hills Fort, situated six or eight miles southwest of the present town of Greenville, Bond County. Journey had eleven men in his corps, and on August 20, 1814, Indian sign was discovered near the fort, and the next morning at daybreak, Journey and party were mounted and out to reconnoitre the country. They had not marched far before they entered an ambuscade of a large party of Indians. The warriors fired on them and Journey and three of his men were instantly killed. William Burges and John Boucher* were wounded—Boucher slightly. The horse of Higgins was shot in the neck and fell to the ground, but soon rose again. Higgins remained a moment "to get a pull at them," as he said. He took deliberate aim at an Indian and shot him dead. He then mounted his horse and was about to return to the fort, when a familiar voice hailed him from the grass and said, "Tom, you wont leave me?" Higgins hollowed out to him to "come on." "I can't come, my leg is smashed to pieces," answered Burges. Higgins dismounted instantly and was getting the wounded man on his horse; but the horse scared and ran off. Higgins told Burges "to limp off on three legs, and he would protect him." Burges crawled off thro the grass and saved himself, while Higgins was left behind to fight the most bloody and terrible battle that ever the same number of men—three Indians and one white man—were engaged in. Higgins had loaded his gun as soon as he had killed the Indian and was ready for the enemy again; but all at once three Indians made their appearance near him. He saw a small ravine close to him and ran for it; so he could defend himself against so many Indians. While he was run-

* John Boucher, son of a Frenchman, was born in Kentucky in 1782; came to Illinois Territory in 1801; was married, Sept., 1817, to Margaret, a native of Hardy Co., Va., and with her parents came to New Design in 1796, daughter of Solomon Shook; was a man of great physical strength and activity; and after moving about the then settled parts of Southern Illinois, he finally settled down, in 1836, in Washington Co., a few miles west of Nashville, where he resided until 1851, when he removed to Jones Co., Iowa, where he died three years later, aged 72; his wife died at Monticello, Iowa, Oct. 4, 1866, aged 75. Of their six children, four sons and two daughters, three survived their parents: 1, Thomas, still resides on the old homestead in Iowa; 2, John Vincent, born Sept. 27, 1818, married, March 5, 1844, Mary B., daughter of Allen Rountree; enlisted in the late war as orderly sergeant of Co. ning, he discovered for the first time his leg failed him—he was wounded at the first fire, but did not know it at the time.

One of the Indians was a very large, stout man, as large as Higgins. The others were small and not so courageous as the large one. Higgins was satisfied he must receive the fire of the large Indian and attempted to dodge it; but the bullet lodged in his thigh and he fell; but rose instantly. By this time, the other two had also fired at him and both balls hit him; he fell, badly wounded, but soon again was on his feet, with his loaded gun in his hand. The Indians threw down their guns, as they had not time to load them again, and rushed, whooping and yelling, on Higgins, with their spears, tomahawks, and knives. When they advanced near him, he presented his gun at them, and that would keep them off awhile. Higgins often told me that the large Indian was as brave as a lion—he could not daunt him or intimidate him in the least; but when the small ones came near him, they quailed under his furious looks. They could not look him in the face, "but the large Indian could look the devil in the face," as Higgins expressed it. The bold Indian was rushing on him and he shot him dead. It is supposed the large Indian did not believe Higgins' gun was loaded, or he would not have rushed on certain death. The Indian had a great soldier—Higgins—to contend with. When the other Indians saw their main man killed, it made them more fierce. They raised the warwhoop the louder and rushed with greater vigor on poor wounded Higgins, who had in his body four Indian balls and had lost much blood; was weak and almost exhausted; had an empty gun and no other weapon; was near many Indian warriors besides the two pressing on him, who were armed with spears, tomahawks, and knives, and were strong, having lost no blood, nor were they wounded, as Higgins was. They gave Higgins many flesh-wounds, as his shirt and body were literally cut to pieces. One of the Indians threw a tomahawk at him; cut his ear nearly off and laid the bone of his head and side of his neck entirely bare. This blow knocked him down, and when they rushed on him with their spears, he kicked them off. When one of the Indians presented his spear at the breast of Higgins while he was stretched on the ground, he caught the spear, and the Indian pulling it, raised Higgins up by it. Then it was that he took his gun and literally knocked the brains out of one of the Indians. This blow broke the skull of the Indian and likewise Higgins' gun. It was shattered all to pieces and the barrel was bent. Then he had but one Indian to fight, but he was nearly exhausted. During most of this fight, it was in sight of the fort, and a woman—a Mrs. Pursley—became excited and said "she could not stand and see so brave a man as Higgins murdered by the Indians." She mounted her husband's horse and started to his rescue. The men in the fort could not see a woman go alone and followed her. As soon as the Indian fighting Higgins* saw the rangers coming, he fled, and they found Higgins prostrated on the ground, nearly dead—cut and mangled and almost torn to pieces. It is supposed, when the Indian fled, the excitement of Higgins subsided and he fainted. In fact, he was nearly dead when his friends relieved him. He barely escaped death from his wounds and never entirely recovered from them altho he lived many years after. He received a pension to the full amount of the law.† He was appointed door-keeper to one of the houses of the general assembly of Illinois, and resided in Fayette County; was a farmer and raised a large family. He died at his residence, above Vandalia, in 1829. Higgins was a generous, open-hearted pioneer.

In the war of 1812, the exposed situation of the country, the weakness of the population, and the strength of the Indian

* Gov. Reynolds in his later work, gives an amusing account of a duel fought with rocks, between Higgins and another man, at the lead-mines, in which the celebrated Indian-fighter was victorious.—"My Own Times", (2d ed.) page 169.—J. H. C.

† I was well acquainted with Hiram Arthur, a remarkably honest and truthful man, who was in the fort near the scene when it took place, and observed it all. He gave me a written account of it, which is now among my papers, from which it appears that about nine-tenths of the amount of the melée is all bosh. "Higgins," he says, "was a brave fellow, but the trouble with the story we read of is that but a small percentage of the facts stated ever occurred. The account originated with Higgins himself. After the war, he lived in Fayette County, Ill., and there he met with a Mr. Hall, who wrote or contributed to the 'Annals of the West,' and gave him his version of the affair, and it took wings and has flown ever since. All that can be said is that the account is altogether overdrawn." I knew Tom Higgins well, and he was in the habit of telling tremendous yarns, and was a capital hand at making himself the hero of all his adventures, particularly when he was in his cups.—J. GILLESPIE, Jan. 25, 1883.

MARION COUNTY, ILLINOIS - 1825 - THE COUNTY'S POPULATION

There were only about five hundred inhabitants in the county when it was established, as the record of a census of the county, taken in 1825, by R. C. Chance, and filed with the county clerk November 26, 1825, shows the total population to be five hundred and fifty-seven, of which two hundred and seventy three were white males, two hundred and eighty two white females, and one negro man and one negro woman slaves. There were one hundred and four heads of families, including five widows. Among those listed was:

WILLIAM PURSLEY

G. A. PURSLEY is a son of William B. and Sophia (Rutherford) Pursley, and was born September 13, 1837, in Sumner County, Tenn. The father was of Irish descent, and was born in Tennessee in 1802, and was a tanner and currier by trade, but later devoted his time to agricultural pursuits. He came to Wilson County in 1839, where he became quite a prosperous farmer, owning 500 acres of land at one time. He died May 16, 1880. He was twice married, his first wife being Harriet Johnston. The mother was of Scotch-Irish descent, born in 1814 and died in 1885.

Our subject came to Wilson County when only two years old. He attended Irving College in Warren County, and the Cumberland University in Lebanon.

September 22, 1857, he married Ann Vance, daughter of Ed R. and Mary Vance. Mrs. Pursley was born November 11, 1840, and became the mother of seven children:

- Hattie (wife of J. R. Gollithan)
- Minnie (wife of J. M. Hannah)
- Lizzie A.
- Alice M.
- Brice B.
- Edwin V.
- Philip H.

Mr. Pursley was first the owner of sixty acres of land, but by industry and economy is now the possessor of 305 acres. He has been a life-long Democrat, and cast his first presidential vote for Stephen A. Douglas.

September 10, 1861, he enlisted in Company B. Fourth Regiment Tennessee Cavalry, and after the reorganization of the army was appointed second lieutenant of his company, but returned home in the summer of 1862, owing to ill health.

He was arrested and kept a prisoner at Murfreesboro for about three months.

He belongs to the Good Templars, and he and his wife are church members.

Note that Pursley is spelled P-U-R-S-T-E-Y on this census record, but on 1860 census, John is apparently dead, and Jane, Sarah, and Nancy are shown with the name spelled P-U-R-S-L-E-Y. Note John was born in Ky., and Joseph in Mo. Also, note the names of the children in comparison to the children of William Pursley, b. 1820 in Ill.; they are almost identical, which I think would mean a relationship. John above would have been born in about 1804, and would not have been our William's father, too young, but probably was an older brother.

No. 39 above, John Whitley, Sr., I believe was the father of the other Whitleys listed above. He had another son, Sharpe Whitley (b. 1800-1810), living in Shelby Co. Ill. in 1830, that was the father of Bathsheba Whitley, who married our Wm. Pursley, b. Ill. 1820. Our Wm. Pursley (son of above Wm.) was in Texas on 1846 Roll Tax list. Sharpe Whitley was in Texas (with Bathsheba) age 6) on Texas 1st census 1829-1836. I think all the Whitleys came to Texas. cp

WILLIAM PURSLEY

William Pursley was born in South Carolina before 1780. He married Lydia Little, probably around 1800, or a little before, in South Carolina. This is just a guess, no proof, but according to the birth places of their children. According to the birth place of their oldest son, John Pursley, they lived in Kentucky for awhile. He was born around 1804, according to the 1850 Walker County, Texas, census record. Lydia Little is given as the maiden name of William Pursley's wife in Brinkerhoff's History of Marion and Clinton Counties, Ill., as well as other information about the family.

According to a descendant of William and Lydia Pursley, Mrs. Reddy of Orion, Ill., tradition was that the Pursleys raised fine horses and loved to race them, and were noted for gambling. According to descendant in Texas, one of William and Lydia Pursley's sons, William Darrell Pursley raised fine horses, and went back to Illinois to buy and sell horses after coming to Texas.

Children of William Pursley and Lydia Little:

1. Lydia "Polly" Pursley, b. ca 1800, m. Isham Jackson, in Bond County, Ill. 20 Jan. 1819. (Ref: Marriage Records Bond County, Ill. 1817-1831)
2. John Pursley, b. ca. 1804, in Kentucky, m. Jane Bowren, 3 Aug. 1830, Marion County, Ill. (Ref: Marriage Records Marion County, Ill. John Pursley and wife Jane were in Walker County, Tx. in the 1850 census.
3. Louvisa (or Louisa) Pursley, b. ca 1805, m. Eli W. Jones, 7 March 1827, Bond County, Ill. She d. (?) and he m. Elizabeth (?) and they came to Texas before 1858, Navarro County.
4. Elizabeth Pursley, b. ca. 1815, m. Thomas J. Boring 23 (or 28) Sept. Marion County, Ill. She is buried in the Boring - Allmon Cemetery.
5. Robert Pursley, m. Elizabeth Drewry, 22 July 1830, Marion County, Ill. (Mr. Brinkerhoff has 22)
6. Sarah Pursley, b. 12 Sept. 1815, in Ill., m. Mordacai Smith 23 Jan. 1831, Marion County, Ill. She d. 5 Oct. 1873 and is buried in the Ross Jones Cemetery.
7. William Pursley, b. 10 Sept. 1820, Marion County, Ill. m. Bathsheba Whitley 15 Dec. 1844, Danville, Montgomery County, Texas. He d. 24 March 1892, buried Pursley Cemetery, Hays County, Texas. Bathsheba Whitley, daughter of Sharpe Whitley and Sarah (?), b. 20 Sept. 1829, Bond County, Ill., d. 18 May 1899, Hays County, Texas, buried Pursley Cemetery.
8. Nancy Pursley, b. ca. 1822, in Ill, probably Marion County, m. after 1840, Mordaicai Ballance, buried Ross Jones Cemetery.

9. Guin Black Pursley, b. ca. 1827, Marion County, Ill., m. Mary (?), probably in Mo. Mary was b. 22 May 1827 in Mo., d. 1910, and is buried in Pine Valley Cemetery, San Jacinto County, Tx. Guin (or Gruin) "Black" Pursley d. between 1860 & 1870, Walker County, Texas.
10. Fanny Pursley, b. ca. 1800, m. James Heart 31 July 1815, Madison County, Ill. (Ref: Ill. State Genealogical Society, Vol. VII, No. 2, Summer, 1975, Page 64). (Note: Mrs. Reddy did not know if this was the daughter of William and Lydia Pursley, or not, said she could have been daughter of John Pursley in Ill. in 1810). But the census records and the Marion County Histories show they had 9 children.

It is not known for sure where William Pursley is buried. Mrs. Reddy thinks he was probably buried on his farm in Marion County, Ill. Mr. Boring, a grandson of Thomas J. Boring and Elizabeth Pursley, said he was buried in the Boring-Allmon Cemetery (probably in Marion County). Lydia Pursley is probably buried in the Pine Valley Cemetery, San Jacinto County, Texas, where her son, "Black" Pursley is probably buried, since she was supposed to have come to Texas with him.

From the records I had, it looked to me like that Gruin B. (Black) Pursley and John Pursley, in Walker County, Texas, in 1850 and 1860, were probably brothers of William Darrell Pursley. G. B. Pursley was born in Ill., and he named his children, Lydia, Samuel, William, David, Mary, Pricilla and Nancy. John Pursley was born in Kentucky, but lived in Ill. Five of his children were born in Ill., William, Hiram, John, Lydia and Elizabeth. He had a son, Joseph, born in Mo., and a daughter, Mary and one named Sarah, born in Texas. They were the same or similar to the names of William D. Pursley's children: William, Andrew, Sarah, John, Hiram, Jackson, Sampson, Elisha, David, Lydia Jane, Mary, Martha, Bob T., and Joseph.

After receiving a letter from Mrs. Reddy, Orion, Ill., she said that tradition said that Lydia Little Pursley came to Texas with her son "Black" Pursley around 1858. So Gruin "Black" Pursley had to be their son.

I believe at this time that William Pursley, born before 1780 in South Carolina to be the son of John Pursley and Mary Black, of York County, S. C. He was born around 1850, York County, S. C. and married Mary Black (Widow) in Feb. 1777. They had the following children: William, b. ca. 1778 (thought to be the one in Ill. that married Lydia Little), James, Jean, Mary, Nancy, Garvin, or Gavin (notice the similarity to Gruin or Guin), Margaret and Sarah. John Pursley was in the American Revolution (Pension Claim W-9242). He was the son of James Pursley, born around 1705, married to Jane or Jean (?). His will was dated and proven in 1788, York County, S. C.

I have no definite proof that John Pursley is the father of William Pursley, but he did have a son named William, and William did name a son G. "Black" Pursley, who could have been named after John's wife, Mary Black.

In a talk with Mary Ann Brubaker (Cowe) Witter, in Austin, Texas, July, 1976, she told me that her grandmother, Mary Pursley, had left a diary, and in this diary she had mentioned that she had written to a cousin, Ella Shuffler, at Alma, Ill. In a letter from Laurelie Reddy, dated 3 March 1977, in answer to my letter of 23 Feb., in which I had asked her about Ella Shuffler, wrote the following:

"The Ella Shuffler (People in Marion Co. usually pronounce it this way) you mention is of course my grandmother, Louella Chandler Shreffler. She was always called Ella during the time that I knew her. I didn't know that she had ever considered going to Texas, but she did, sometime in the 1920's spend two winters in New Mexico seeking a cure for T. B. Her husband was dead by this time and I believe her son Leslie went with her. Grandma Shreffler did live at Alma, Il. which is where my parents returned after dad retired."

REFERENCE REPORT FROM ILLINOIS STATE HISTORICAL LIBRARY, SPRINGFIELD, ILLINOIS, DATED 10 JULY 1959 TO LAURELIE L. REDDY ON PURSLEY FAMILY

The 1818 Illinois census lists a William Pusley as head of a family in Bond County consisting of 9 other white persons. (Illinois census returns, 1810 & 1818, Springfield, 1935, Page 56.). The name is not in the 1810 census. In 1820 William Purseley was listed as head of a family in Bond County consisting of one white male under 21, one white male over 21, and 5 white females. Ishom Jackson also appears in the 1820 Bond County census on the same page, head of a family consisting of one white male under 21 and one white female. (Illinois census returns, 1820., Springfield, 1934, Page 10).

A copy of Bond County marriages, 1817 - 1831, lists Isham Jackson to Polly Pursley, 20 Jan. 1819. No other Pursley marriages are listed for that period. The name of William Pursley appears on the bronze tablet erected to the War of 1812 Soldiers buried in Bond County, located at the north entrance to the county court house at Greenville, Ill. The tablet was dedicated Nov. 11, 1928, by the Kaskaskia Chapter, U. S. Daughters of 1812. (Illinois State Historical Society Journal, v. 21, Jan. 1929, Page 546). No further reference to the Pursley family was found. In all indexed accounts Mrs. Pursley is referred to as the wife of William Pursley.

PURSLEY FAMILY - DATE 21 July 1959

The transcripts of Marion County, Illinois marriages, 1821 - 1829, lists the marriage of Eli Jones to Miss Lucy Parsley, March 8, 1827, by William Jones, J. P. The transcript states the license was issued March 27, 1827. There is a discrepancy here, either the marriage was on March 28 or the license was issued prior to March 8. For location of the original record, see Marriage records of Marion County, Ill.. No other records of marriage was found for the dates of this transcript.

23 Sept. 1830 - Thomas J. Boring & Miss Elizabeth Pursley, of age
22 June 1831 - Mordacai Smith, wife, Sally Pursley

The above list of marriage records is in the possession of Frank Brinkerhoff, Salem, Ill. Mr. Brinkerhoff is the grandson of Prof. J. H. G. Brinkerhoff, who wrote Brinkerhoff's History of Marion County, Illinois in 1909. Mr. Frank Brinkerhoff is a member of the Marion County, Ill. Genealogy Society. He has in his possession a note book that his grandfather kept with notes about various families in the county. The information about the Pursley family below was copied by Mrs. Laurelie Reddy, from these notes.

PURSLEY FAMILY

Lived at Hill's fort near Greenville, Ill. (Bond County).

Eli Boring a grandson, says Mr. Pursley is buried in the Boring-Allmon Cemetery. Mrs. John Bell (Nancy) Chandler, says he died while at the fort. (Mr. Boring was a grandson of Thomas J. Boring and Elizabeth Pursley. Nancy Chandler was a daughter of Mordacai Smith and Sarah Pursley (daughter of William and Lydia Little Pursley), and great grandmother of Mrs. Reddy).

Both Mr. Boring and Mrs. Chandler agree the grandmother came to Marion County, and afterward went in the early 50's in a covered wagon with her son "Black" Pursley to Texas, where she died.

Children: William, Jr.

Mordacai Ballance

Mordacai Smith

1. Eli Jones (Brother to LAME E. W.'s father)

2. Tom Boring (She was killed by lightening)

(Note from Mrs. Reddy: I think the above marriage list would prove that Louisa (or Levincy) was not married twice and that Elizabeth should be listed as the wife of Tom Boring. If Elizabeth was called "Lizzy" there could be some confusion between the names Levicy and Lizzy. She said this was the only time she had seen the children of William and Lydia Pursley listed).

NOTES FROM HISTORY OF MARION AND CLINTON COUNTIES, ILLINOIS, BY BRINK, McDONOUGH & CO., PHILADELPHIA, 1881, PAGE 46

One of the oldest settlers now living in the county is William Hill, who emigrated from South Carolina in 1803, and removed from Randolph County, Ill. to this county in 1825, he being one of twelve children. The company of emigrants with whom his father and family came from South Carolina numbered thirty persons. They were nine weeks en route to this western country, and once lost the road, causing them to go for four days without anything to eat.

Mr. Hill was nine months in the War of 1812, and three months in the Black Hawk War, during which time he was as near that celebrated warrior as he desired to be. In 1819 he married his cousin, Jane Hill, with whom he, at the time of her death, had lived sixty-one years.

He has witnessed the transformation of this county and state from a howling wilderness, inhabited by wild beasts and savage Indians, into a blooming paradise, occupied by the enterprising Saxon race with all the rich results of modern civilization. Let his name then be embalmed in history as one of the honored pioneers of this great state and this prosperous county.

It seems to me that Pursley's were probably in this group above that came from South Carolina. Even though John Pursley lists his birth place as Kentucky and this group was already in Illinois by 1804, this could be explained by the fact that Illinois was a part of Virginia at that time, and could have been classed by some as Kentucky territory.

We know that the Pursley family was living at Hill's Fort by 1814. So if they did not come with them, they must have found them soon after they came to Illinois.

The estates administered on during the infancy of the county are but few in number and small in value. The first estate administered on was that of Henry Whatley, who died in 1827. The value of the personal property was $121.45, Hardy Foster, adm. The estate of WILLIAM PURSLEY, March 1828, amounted to $301.75. Page 75, above history.

The third estate administered in Marion County, Ill. was that of William Pursley. The Probate Court Record shows "William Pursley's" estate March, 1828, amounted to $301.75. The Estate Sale included some of the following articles:

Hogs	$ 1.25 ea.
Sow	3.25
Plow	4.00
Ax	1.50
Hoe	.75
Spinning Wheel	1.00
Loom	11.00
Counterpane	2.00

Yoke of Steers	18.00
Cow	5.75
Heifer	2.50
Cart	5.37-1/2
Three Chairs	.50 ea.

The articles sold here embrace about all that the wealthier class of people possessed in those days. It is strange, however, that at this, or any of the other earlier sales, hunter's equipment was not offered for sale. BOND COUNTY, ILL. (Continued)

RESCUE OF THOMAS HIGGINS FROM THE INDIANS BY WILLIAM PURSLEY AND THOMAS WHITE.

During and after the War of 1812 forts were set up to protect the settlers from the Indians. An attack by the Indians took place at Hill's Station in the latter part of August 1814, in Bond County, Ill. There have been various tales told of this incident, but this version was given by persons now living (in 1882), who had the scene described to them by those residing in the station at the time of its occurrence, besides from the statement of the hero of the conflict himself, and may be considered reliable (quoting directly from the book). A Benjamin Henson, a resident of the station, while out hunting one day, saw an Indian and reported that he believed they were in danger of being attacked. The next morning they decided to send out a party of men to check on the Indian situation. They were suddenly fired upon by some Indians, concealed behind some trees. Maj. Journey, Capt. Grotz and two of the privates -- Lynn and Wm. Pruitt were instantly killed. The fifth man Thomas Higgins was shot in the thigh and fell from his horse, which ran off. The others, seeing danger ahead, left the path immediately, scattering in different directions, managed to engage the enemy as best they could. Having seen Higgins fall from the horse with the other four, they supposed he had been killed also, and took no further notice of him at that time. The Indians were armed only with spears, that surrounded Higgins, occasionally one gave him a thrust with his spear, then they would all laugh to see him dodge and writhe with the pain, but were afraid to advance near enough to take hold of him. Higgins had his gun, but knew he could only get in one shot and then they would get him, so he held his fire. Finally Higgins feeling himself getting weaker, shot one of the Indians, killing him. The Indians then grabbed his gun, began beating him with it. Higgins was getting weaker, and felt that his time had come, when, to his great joy, he beheld two white men - WILLIAM PURSLEY and David White - on horseback, coming to his rescue. They came up behind the Indians, and they did not see them. As soon as Higgins saw them he exclaimed "PURSLEY, for God's sake, don't let him kill me." They then killed the Indians. A portion of the fight was witnessed by the women in the fort. Mrs. White grabbed a gun, mounted a horse and started to Mr. Higgins assistance when she saw PURSLEY and her husband going to help him, she returned to the fort.

From: History of Bond County and Montgomery Illinois. This was written in 1882, and was sent to me by Mrs. Ruth Leppert, Chicago, Ill. She probably copied it from the Mayberry Library, Chicago, Ill.

ANOTHER VERSION OF THE SAME STORY IN HISTORY OF MARION AND CLINTON COUNTIES, ILL.

"WILLIAM PURSLEY was the first settler within the limits of the present township of Tonti. His arrival here dates back to 1822, and his death occurred shortly afterwards. His widow, whose maiden name was Lydia Little, survived him many years.

It was she that rescued the intrepid frontiersman, Thomas Higgins, from the Indians, within sight of Fort Hill, near Greenville, Illinois, after he had been deserted by his comrades. This heroic act has given to her name a historic lustré that will ever remain bright in the early annals of this country. She was a medium sized woman, and in dauntless bravery, a true pioneer. Her skill in the use of the rifle was equal to that of any man, and her cool courage never failed her even in the most dangerous situations. She was the mother of nine children, all of whom are dead. (Don't know when this was written. cp). Several of her grandchildren; however, still live in the county. About twenty years ago she went to Texas, and soon afterwards died."

From: This was quoted directly from History of Marion and Clinton Counties, Illinois, and was copied at the Bryan - Bennett Library, Salem, Ill. by a friend Gwen Coleman, Andrews, Texas, who was doing research in that library. This was from page No: 45. Have sent to library for more information as to dates, etc. (cp)

Note: From the two versions of the rescue of Thomas Higgins from the Indians, in either Bond County or Marion County, Illinois, we do know that a WILLIAM PURSLEY or his wife, LYDIA PURSLEY rescued Mr. Higgins. The earliest record I have of William Pursley in Bond County, Illinois, is on the Muster List of the Black Hawk War in August 1812. He was also on the 1818 and 1820 census of Bond County, Ill., and was made a Justice of the Peace in Bond County, in 1819. He was listed on a census of Marion County, Ill. in 1825.

On the arrival of the party at Peoria a parley was held between Capt. Levering and a chief named Gomo of the Pottawotamies. After several conferences, Gomo gave up two stolen horses which he found in the possession of his men, but claimed he could not find the murderers. Little Chief promised to deliver two more horses to Capt. Heald at Chicago, and Gomo promised to deliver the murderers when they could be found. The Indians had killed four white men and wounded another one. The Indians said they might be able to find the murderers by fall. Capt. Levering, who had been assigned this commission died soon afterwards of exposure and disease contracted during this expedition.

Dear Mrs. Pursley,

I was happily surprised to see your letter in the Footprints of Marion County, IL. You seem to be working on several of the same lines as me. Eli Jones parents are also my ancestors, his sister married my ancestor, Hardy Foster. My mother was a Nichols from Marion Co. IL.

I doubt very much that I can help you, but I wonder if you can give me some info. I, too, am a descendent of Wm. and Lydia (Little) Pursley, and I have searched for years to find where they came from.

A Wm. Pursley is found in the history of the "State of Franklin". He received a Land Grant in Washington Co. (later Greene Co.) Tennessee for his revolutionary service in N. C. and paid tax in the years 1879 and 1890. There was also a Wm. Pursley in Clark's army in Illinois.

I believe that one of these two men would be the father of our Wm. Pursley. However, Brink's History of Marion Co. says that Wm. Pursley was much older than his wife Lydia. So it is possible that our Wm. Pursley could be the same one that served in the Revolution with Clark. Many of Clark's men came back to IL and settled in the vicinity. If this is the case, Lydia could have been the second wife of Wm.

I did not have the wife of Wm. Jr. so your letter completed my list of spouses for their children. My g g grandmother was Sarah Pursley, who married Mordecai Smith in Marion Co. IL, 23 Jun 1831.

Lydia Pursley is found in the Fed. Census of 1830 & 1840 as a widow living in Marion Co. so I knew she went to Texas sometime after that but I never knew the exact date, and I had never been able to trace the place that they went to in Texas. Do you know why they went to Texas?

Could you send me the death date of Lydia Pursley? (I assume she never re-married). I would also appreciate any Texas Census records you might have. I have some info on the family I could send to you in return.

Thanking you, I remain,

Sincerely yours

Dear Clairene,

I received your letter of 1 Feb and intended to answer it rather quickly, but we were called to southern Illinois. My mother had a very severe stroke and my father called us home as she was in critical condition. She died 7 Feb in the Salem Hospital. I don't feel like doing any serious work on family history but I will attempt to answer some of your questions.

I am enclosing my family chart back to the Pursley's and you will note that I am not so much younger than your husband. It's just that I'm from the older children of older children. I'll be fifty in March.

I was also very glad to hear from you as I've never found anyone who was working on the Pursley line.

Technically, William D. Pursley was not born in Salem, IL but in Tonti Township about 5 miles from Salem. His father Wm. Pursley bought the land from the government. He was the first settler in Tonti Township. He entered the land from the government 20 Jun 1823 (80 acres). The horses you mention may well have been race horses because the Pursley family was noted for their horse racing and gambling.

I don't think William Pursley was the only Pursley living in the state of IL in 1818. If you take into consideration the misspelling of the census taker, you would have to accept the Paisley's and the Parsley's as being the same name. If you write these names out in long hand you can note the similarity.

I was happy to get your information on Wm. Pursley being a justice of peace in Bond Co. This I did not know before. Where did you find that?? Of course Bond Co. covered a great deal of territory at that time, and he could have been a squatter on his Marion Co. property at that time.

I can not identify the John Pursley who was in the War of 1812 (the Blackhawk War was in the 1830's). I, too, think he may have been a brother of Wm. They were in what was known as the "Illinois Rangers", and must have been living in Illinois at this time since the Whiteside company was an IL company.

In both the 1850 and 1860 Federal census my Sarah Pursley Smith gives her age as being born in 1814 in Illinois. This would seem to be correct as the date in history books is given as August 1814 for the time the Pursley family was living at Hill's Fort in Bond County. However I have Nancy Chandler's death certificate and it lists her mother as Sarah Pursley being born in South Carolina. I believe this to be an error since the information about Sarah's husband has been proved to be incorrect.

Pursley Family

The State of Franklin was in Tennessee. Perhaps I should say in what is now Tennessee, it was then North Carolina. I must have made a mistake in typing, the taxes paid in Greene County Tennessee were in 1779 and 1780.

Your hypothesis concerning the parentage of Wm. Pursley seems to be better than anything I had figured. I'm not sure that many of Clark's army came from South Carolina, but if he had already migrated from S. C. to Tennessee or Kentucky he could have enlisted there.

Concerning the fact that he was an "old man" when he went to MarCo, this could be explained by the fact that most of the settlers were either young hunters of newly married couples and even forty looks old to them. I haven't checked the 1830 census records but in the 1840 census there were very few over 50. Lydia is in the 40-50 bracket.

As to twins, there are some in our line. Louella Chandler Shreffler (5) had twin boys who died at birth. Her granddaughter (My Cousin) had twins who also died at birth, and this same cousin's sister has twin grandchildren. I don't know of any others at present but I do not go down hill on the family, I'm mainly concerned with direct ancestors.

I have not noted the use of the name Black as a given name in my research of the Pursley family other than a tradition that Lydia went to Texas with her son Black Pursley. I suppose this could be the Gruin you have noted. However, my thinking would be that they went to Texas either with or soon after John Pursley went in 1845 or 1846. According to your census of 1850 (Montgomery Co. TX) Gruin must have gone after 1846. There were no Pursleys in the MarCo IL census for 1850.

I would appreciate very much having the pension papers of James and John Pursley, also the will. I would also like to correspond with Fern Kahlert as I am working on the Jones line. My Mahalia Foster's mother was a sister to Eli Jones.

I have no bible records on the Pursley-Little line, but I am quite satisfied in my own mind that Lydia's maiden name was Little. Mordacai Smith's brother Britton helped in some way when the Brink, McDonough & Co. "History of Marion and Clinton Counties, Illinois" book was written so I think their information could be considered reliable.

I'll put this letter in the mail so you will know I have not forgotten you and try to get you some copies of some of the things I have later. By the way I do know that William Pursley died either late in 1827 or early in 1828.

Dear Clairene,

What can I say when I receive a letter with as much info as you sent? I have read and re-read everything in it and it has to be the most info any one ever sent to me. First I will answer the questions in your letter and then get back to that. I have a lot of books from the Shawneetown (Carterville, IL) Library on inter library loan to work on, and also the 1830 Fed Census for Marion Co IL. These things are sent for two weeks so I have to work fast when they come in. And wouldn't you know that our 14 year old Philip had a term paper due for English last Friday so I took time out to type that for him.

I have seen nothing in print (lately) about the Pursley family I belong to the Ill. State GEN SOC, MarCo GEN SOC, and take the "Philips and Kin" a news letter from Franklin Co. IL. I haven't seen anything about them there, but I've only had the last two years of the IL magazine. I had thought of doing an article on Wm. Pursley for the MarCo Journal, but it would be fine with me if you did it. I have several other ancestors that I can work on from Tonti Township when they get to it, which should be some time in 1978. I sent them an article this time on Hardy Foster, but don't know if they will use it or not.

I will Xerox the marriage records from Bond Co for you at some later date. I checked it and there was no marriage record for Sharp Whitley. I believe the early IL Quarterlies had more info in them than the present ones have. I sent for the one you referred to me and was pleasantly surprised to find land records for Hamilton County, where my Mauldings and Clarks settled about 1815. There were also marriage records from St. Clair County, but didn't find much there.

I wonder if we will ever be able to confirm the family of William and Lydia. I looked, one time when I was in Salem and could find no record of the estate of William. According to Brinks History there should have been probate records, but I couldn't find them. When I have more time I plan to search the land record in the court house, but for the past four or five years when I went down there I spent most of my time in Alma because Mom was not able to get out very much. I always felt that I should spend my time with her, and I'm glad now that I did. Those records in the court house will still be there when I get to them.

Oh yes, I have listed James Heart as the husband of Fanny Pursley, but have no, but no, evidence that she is the child of William and Lydia. She may belong to the John Pursley, who was early in Illinois. I got the info from an early Madison Co, IL list. I saw that I also had another error on the family sheet I sent to you, Lydia's birth should have been in the 1700's, not the 1800's.

Don't know what kind of census records you have access to but I would think that if the Pursley family spent time in KY it may have been in Barron Co. It may have been some other middle KY co, but the Higgins referred to at Hill's Fort was from Barron Co, and since they seem to have been somewhat together I would look there first. There were also some Pursley's in Wilson Co TN where many of the other early settlers of MarCo were from, but they were there after our Wm. came to IL.

My family sheets have probably been out of print for many years I just keep Xeroxing blank ones. About twenty years ago I was studying with an elderly man over in Will Co, IL where we used to live. He was a semi-professional genealogist and died a couple of years after I met him. After his death, his wife brought me quite a few books and a good supply of the sheets, but I think the supply house had been out of business for quite a while. I'm sending you some blanks and maybe you can get some one to run you off some. Even now when I have a problem trying to figure out something on my family I surely wish he were here to give me advice.

The early histories of Marion County are:

Brinkerhoff's History of Marion Co. IL	History of Marion and Clinton
Brinkerhoff, Prof. J. H. G.	Counties, Illinois
B. F. Bowen & Co., Publishers	Brink, McDonough & Co
Indianapolis, Ind. 1909	Philadelphia, 1881

Portrait and Biographical Record of Clinton,
Washington, Marion and Jefferson Counties, IL
Chapman Publishing Co.
Chicago 1894.

I have read all three and do not remember the name Whitley, but that doesn't mean much -- I wasn't looking for it. I do remember seeing the name Whatley and wouldn't be surprised that it wasn't what you are looking for. Spelling meant very little in early southern Illinois.

No, I haven't seen William Pursley's grave and don't think that it will ever be found. I really think he was either buried in the Almon Cemetery (about 1 mi. from his farm) or else on the farm itself. The marker is at the Bond Co Courthouse, but I can't believe that in 1828 they took him 20 miles through Marion Co Mud to bury him there. Especially in the rainy month of March. The marker is in Greenville and I have never been to that town.

Now to get back to the info you sent me -- I could not figure out the relationship in the "Edgefield County Wills" but did wonder if John Clackler was the step-father (or perhaps the grandfather) of the Pursley children. I think I was more interested in the name of the witness in the will above it. George Guin. I wonder in all these names you are finding -- Gruin, Gavin, etc. are a corruption of the name Gwinn or Gwynn, which was taken from a family name.

As to the census -- information available would indicate that most surely the John Pursley in the Carden District, York County, SC was our ancestor. I am inclosing further info as to why I think so. I have some notes as to my thinking on the 1800 census --but in view of your 1800 census findings --I believe I would have to agree with you.

Pursley Family

In the IL 1818 census it seems to me that the Wm PUSLEY family probably had some one else living with them -- since the 1830 census shows them with 3 children under 10. If not they must have had 11 children.

I do have in my files a complete copy of the 1825 MarCo census, if you would like to have it. I copied from the Brinks History. Your 1830 and 1840 Mar Co census figures agree with mine.

I am enclosing two (four) pages from the John Reynolds History of Illinois. I believe he was the first to print the Hill Fort Story. I do think the story grew with age, however my grandmother always told us that her grandmother was in Ill. History books. (When I was a child "IL History" was a subject in school when we were in 7th or 8th grade. At that time She would tell us about it)

As to the Littles --I just don't know. The Samuel Little was married to Mary IRVIN. (She was probably from the Hamilton Co Irvins) He had a son John, b 1826, who was married in Jefferson Co IL for the third time in 1886 to Mrs. Ellen M. BRUCE (who was born in 1836, John was born in 1826) This was his third marriage and her fourth.

It seems doubtful to me that this could be the same Sam LITTLE who fought in the Revolution. However many of the soldiers did marry late and have late families.

Now -- what a delight to read the pension papers on John PUSLEY--- As I see it or understand it though this would be the final payment papers. Do you have the complete set? John, himself, probably due to his early death, never received a pension. He may have had a land bounty of some description. Do you know anything about that? There should also be papers for Mary Pursley. The one marked South Carolina 4432 is the only one there concerning that. Usually a file will contain many of those. The other three papers seem to be depositions concerning who should receive the final payment. Do you know if SC gave a state bounty, bounty land, or pension?

I believe that this John PURSLEY was the father of our William. Maybe I missed it but I still don't understand how you knew that Mary Black was a widow.

As to the will of James Pursley, it looks as if he could be the father of John, but if he is this would make it 83 years between the two men. A long span in that era for a grandfather-grandson. Most men were younger than 39 when their first son was born. James to John or in the case of John to William 44 Years. To me the time does not seem right. However I would have to agree that the location is certainly right. Has anyone checked on the land mentioned in the will?

The will was certainly interesting to me in other respects, especially the name Nickells. My mother's maiden name was Nichols. It would probably be fair to assume that the James Nickels who signed the will was really the Husband of Margaret Pursley since it was common for the son-in-law to be a witness. And then I also wondered what the relationship of the David Pursley was to James. He could not have been the son David mentioned in the will. Do you know?

I guess my intentions were honorable but I just couldn't seem to get this letter in the mail. It was Friday before I assembled the material for Joe to take to work to get Zeroxed, and then all of our children (7) were home for the weekend. I can't think of much to add to this except perhaps to put a stamp on it and mail it.

The first settler in Tonti Township, Marion County, Illinois was William Pursley. He located on section 14, as early as 1820. On 20 Jun 1823 he entered the west half of the north-west quarter of the above section, it being the first land entered in the township. He was an old man when he came here and only lived a short time after he deeded his land.

His widow, whose maiden name was Lydia Little, survived him many years. It was she that rescued the intrepid frontiersman, Thomas Higgins, from the Indians within sight of Fort Hill, near Greenville, Illinois, after his comrades had deserted him. This happened in August 1814. This heroic act has given to her name a historic lustre that will ever remain bright in the early annals of this state and country

She was medium sized woman, and, in dauntless bravery, a true pioneer. Her skill in the use of the rifle was equal to that of any man, and her cool courage never failed her even in the most dangerous situations. It is said that she could handle a rifle with as much dexterity as any of the early "Illinois Rangers". She was born and raised on the frontier and had wonderful nerve.

After the death of her husband she lived in Marion Co., IL for many years and then, with part of her family, removed to Texas (ca 1850) where she died soon afterward. Several of her descendants stayed in the Marion County area.

GOIN BLACK PURSLEY

Goin Black Pursley, son of William Pursley and Lydia Little, was born on 4 Jan 1826, Marion County, Illinois. He died of cancer while on his way to Louisiana for treatment, 29 Jan 1870. He is buried between Shreveport, La. and Lake Jackson. (Information from Mrs. Paul Gerrick, 409 Avery, Clute, Texas 77531. She is a granddaughter of Henry Thomas Pursley, who was a grandson of G. B. Pursley.)

G. B. Pursley married Mary Ann Parker, 14 August 1845, Marion County, Ill. The ceremony was performed by Moses Garrett, J. P. (Marriage Records, Marion County, Illinois). The bible record of G. B. Pursley shows the date of marriage as 11 August 1845.

Mary Ann Parker was born 22 May 1827, in Tennessee, and died 9 Feb 1901, San Jacinto Co., Texas, and is buried in the Pine Valley Cemetery.

Goin Black Pursley served as a Private in Company "A" Infantry, 17th Brigade, under Col. W. T. Robinson. He enlisted August 28, 1863, in Walker County, Texas, for a period of 6 months, at the age of 39. He was stationed at Camp San Jacinto, near Huntsville, Texas.

He received a land grant from Governor F. R. Lubbock, on 16 October 1862, for 160 acres of land in San Jacinto County, Texas (Originally in Walker Co.) This was Grant No. 51, Vol. 16, Land Grant Records, Texas State Archives, Austin, Texas.

G. B. Pursley came to Texas after the birth of his daughter, Lydia, in 1846, and before the birth of his son, Samuel, in 1848. According to history books of Illinois, his mother, Lydia Pursley, came to Texas with him, in a covered wagon. She must have died soon after coming to Texas, as she is not on the 1850 census record with any of her three sons that came to Texas.

Goin B. Pursley had two brothers to come to Texas. William Darrell Pursley came around 1840, and John Pursley came before 1850. At least two sisters were supposed to have come also.

On the 1850 Montgomery County, Texas, census record, G. B. Pursley is shown in House No. 108, age 23, Blacksmith, b. Ill. Shown with him was his wife, Mary, age 21, b. Tenn., daughter, Lydia, age 4, b. Ill., son, Samuel, age 2, b. Texas. He is shown on the 1860 Walker County, Texas census record, House No. 604-597, age 33, Farmer, b. Ill., Mary, age 32, b. Tenn., Lydia, age 13, b. Ill., Samuel, age 11, b. Texas, William H., age 9, b. Texas, David J., age 7, b. Texas, Mary M., age 6, b. Texas, Prissilla, age 4, b. Texas, Nancy A., age 1, b. Texas.

Dear Mrs. Pursley,

My brother ask me to send you what I had on the family.
I plan to start a family history. This is all I can give you now.
I think my great grand father and two of his brothers came from Mississippi to Texas.
Our dad David Pursley died in 1975 and I'm sorry I did not ask him all about his grand parents. I will visit one of my aunts soon and she can tell me something I do not know and maybe I can find out more about this.

So nice of you to write and we would be happy to have your history.
I think it's very interesting and who knows perhaps we might have a connection here.
We will keep in touch.

Sincerely
Gertrude Bradham

One of the oldest settlers now living in the county is Wm. HILL, who emigrated from South Carolina in 1803, and removed from Randolph county, Illinois, to this county in 1825, he being one of twelve children. The company of emigrants with whom his father and family came from South Carolina numbered thirty persons. They were nine weeks en route to this western country, and once lost the road, causing them to go for four days without anything to eat.

Mr. Hill was nine months in the war of 1812, and three months in the Black Hawk war, during which time he was as near that celebrated warrior as he desired to be. In 1819 he married his cousin, Jane Hill, with whom he, at the time of her death, had lived sixty-one years.

He has witnessed the transformation of this county and state from a howling wilderness, invaded by wild beasts and savage Indians, into a blooming paradise, occupied by the enterprising Saxon race with all the rich results of modern civilization. Let his name then be embalmed in history as one of the honored pioneers of this great state and this prosperous county.

It seems to me that the Pursley's were probably in this group that came from South Carolina. Even though John Pursley lists his birth place as Kentucky and this group was already in Ill. by 1804, this could be explained by the fact that Ill. was a part of Virginia at that time and could have been classed by some as Kentucky territory.

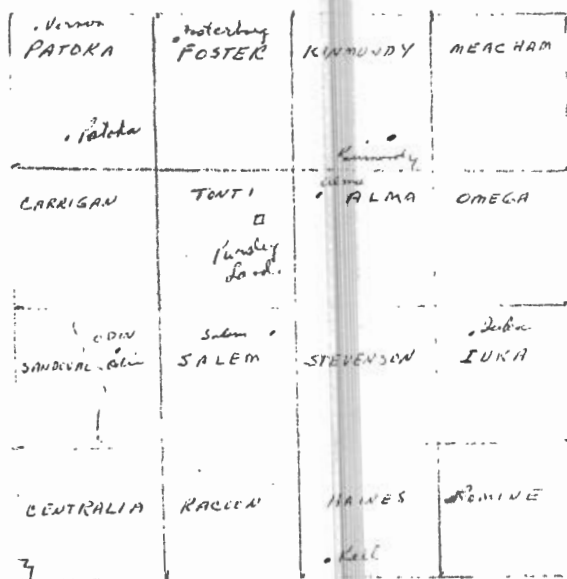

We know the Pursley family was living at Hill's Fort by 1814. So if they did not come with them, they must have found them soon after they came to Ill.

REFERENCE REPORT -- ILLINOIS STATE HISTORICAL LIBRARY

Date 10 July 1959 -- PURSLEY FAMILY

The 1818 Illinois census lists a William Pusley as head of a family in Bond County consisting of 9 other white persons. (Illinois census returns, 1810, 1813. Springfield, 1935. p. 56.) The name is not in the 1810 census. In 1820 William Purseley was listed as head of a family in Bond County consisting of one white male under 21, one white male over 21, and 5 white females. Ishom Jackson also appears in the 1820 Bond County census on the same page, head of a family consisting of one white male under 21, and one white female. (Illinois census returns, 1820. Springfield, 1934. p. 10) For later census returns, see below.*

A copy of Bond County marriage, 1817-1831, lists Isham Jackson to Polly Pursley, 20 Jan. 1819. No other Pursley marriages are listed for that period. The name of William Pursley appears on the bronze tablet erected to the War of 1812 soldiers buried in Bond County, located at the north entrance to the county court house at Greenville, Ill. The tablet was dedicated Nov. 11, 1928, by the Kaskaskia Chapter, U. S. Daughters of 1812. (Illinois State Historical Society Journal, v. 21, Jan. 1929, p. 546.) No further reference to the Pursley family was found. In all indexed accounts Mrs. Pursley is referred to as the wife of William Pursley.

Date 21 July 1959 -- PURSLEY FAMILY

The transcripts of Marion County, Illinois marriages, 1821-1829 lists the marriage of Eli Jones to Miss Lucy Parsley! March 8, 1827, by William Jones, J. P. the transcript states the license was issued March 27, 1827. There is a discrepancy here, either the marriage was on March 28 or the license was issued prior to March 8. For location of the original record, see bottom of this page.No other marriage was found for the dates of this transcript.

Frank Brinkerhoff is the grandson of Prof. J. H. G. Brinkerhoff who wrote Brinkerhoff's History of Marion County, Illinois in 1909 (Frank now belongs to the MarCo Gen Soc.) He has in his possession a note book that his grandfather kept with notes about various families in the county. Below is what I copied about the Pursley family.

Lived at Hill's fort near Greenville, ILL. (Bond County)

Eli Boring a grandson says Mr. Pursley is buried in the Boring-Allmon Cemetery. Mrs. John Bell (Nancy) Chandler says he died while at the fort.

Both agree the grandmother came to Marion Co. and afterward went in the early 50's in a wagon with her son Black Pursley to Texas where she died.

Children --	William, Jr.
	John
	Black
	Nancy	Mordacai Ballance
	Sarah	Mordacai Smith
	Louisa	1. Eli Jones (Brother to LAME E. W.'S father)
		2. Tom Boring (She was killed by lightening)
-----	Lydia	Isham Jackson (father of Ward Jackson)

I think the above marriage list would prove that Louisa was not married twice and that Elizabeth should be listed as the wife of Tom Boring. If Elizabeth were called Lizzy there could be confusion between the names Levicy and Lizzy.

Pursley Family

I believe that William and Lydia Pursley had 10 children if you include Gruin B. and Fanny. I have placed Fanny at the bottom of page 2 in my family sheet, because she is not included in Mr. Brinkerhoff's list (this is the only time I have seen the children's names in a list). However if Fanny was already married and settled in Bond or Madison Co. this could account for her not being on the list. I have also placed Robert's name on the list because in the 1830 census list Lydia is the only Pursley listed as a "head of household" in Marion Co. (until I heard from you, I had always reasoned that he must be the one called "Black"). You can check them against what you have and let me know what you think.

By the way, I think I sent you the wrong census sheet, for 1840 I am enclosing the one I had made out for you and if I sent you one before would you please return it?

I am also enclosing several things that you may have, they are things I have collected in my Pursley file through the years. The one about G. A. Pursley is probably a descendent of the N. C. Pursleys. I don't see much connection except that I think our Pursleys were probably Irish.

Thank you for Ms Kahlert's address and I intend to write to her some time soon. I did not know the name of Mary Jones' parents but I have a little more info about the children than she does so perhaps we can help each other.

I will attempt to tell you my thoughts on the census records you sent me. The Walker Co. 1850-60 census for John and Jane Pursley must of course be the family we're looking for. This would place the date of their leaving Ill at 1847 or 1848. The six year old Elizabeth in the 1850 census could possibly be the same Elizabeth who is living with the Mordecai Smith family in the 1860 census.

As to the Gruin B. Pursley I could probably tell you more about that after I visited the Marion Co. Court House. Maybe if we were very lucky we would find that some one signed for his marriage license, since he was apparently married before he left Marion Co. I also want to check there to see what happened to the land. I have a 1948 Plat Book and it was then owned by B. E. Duncan, but that's along time after 1847.

In the 1850 MarCo census for Eli Jones, I think the Sabry and Laura that you have listed are probably the children of his brother Joseph who had died in 1844. Joseph left a widow with 6 children. The Willis Jones family is not related; their ancestor was Ross Jones from Tennessee and is not related.

I can not place the Martin Jones in the 1860 Navarro co. TX census, but would think he was from the Samuel Jones family. I think the Rap T. H. might also be Ross.

In regard to the 1870 Navarro County TX census for E. Pursley I think this could possibly be Robert's wife. Perhaps one of his daughters married a Coker. I do not know where she was born and have seen very little record of the Drewry name in MarCo. They may have been some of the group that came from South Carolina with the Pursleys early in the 1800's.

WILLIAM DARRELL PURSLEY

By

MARY BRUBAKER COWE

My great-grandfather, William Darrell Pursley came to Texas from Salem, Illinois. He was born in Illinois 10 September 1820. He and my great-grandmother, Bathsheba Whitley (b. 20 September 1829 in Salem, Illinois) were cousins. Her family came to Texas first, about 1839. Wm. Pursley came to Texas about 1840. They were married at Danville, Texas, Lavaca County. They moved to the Dripping Springs area and lived there the remainder of their lives. They had fourteen children - only eight lived to maturity (one child that died was my grandmother's twin sister.) My great-grandfather was in the Civil War in Captain W.H.D. Carrington's Company of Mounted Troops. He furnished his own horse, valued at $500. and horse equipment valued at $150. Some of the letters he wrote to my great-grandmother while in the Civil War were published in the "Texas Military History" Vol. 4, 1964. His letters are mostly of thoughts of the family, although he does also mention Sabine Pass and his Battalion took part in the recapture of Galveston.

After his tour of duty in the service he returned to Dripping Springs. He divided his land with his children. He died in 1891, his wife, Bathsheba, in 1899. They are buried in the Pursley Cemetery on Mt. Sharp Road out of Dripping Springs. Children of William Darrell and Bathsheba (Whitley) Pursley were:

Andrew b. 15 Dec. 1845, d. 17 May 1857 ; Sarah Elizabeth b. 1847; m. Wm. D. /

JOHN MILLEDGE GREATHOUSE

Unfortunately, I never knew my great-grandfather, John M. Greathouse, but for some reason he has always been my favorite while tracing our family lines.

With the help of an uncle, cousins, census reports and other material, I have tracked him pretty well. He was born 8 May, 1822, in Virginia, to John Greathouse and Rebecca Williams Greathouse. John Greathouse died in 1839 in Hardeman County, Tennessee. Rebecca Greathouse with her son, John M., and his brothers: Paul William, Archibald D., and Cokely Early, his sisters: Frances, Nancy, and Lucinda Elizabeth, went to Sevier County, Arkansas. On the 15th of August 1847, John Milledge Greathouse married Virginia May, the daughter of Leroy and Elizabeth Davis May. His other brothers and sisters also married in Arkansas. The girls, and John's mother, Rebecca, all remained in Ark.,

ILLINOIS'S FIRST JUSTICES OF THE PEACE

Lowell M. Volkel

Justices of the peace were the most important local judicial officials in early nineteenth century Illinois. Various and sundry duties came under their jurisdiction. Their Solomonian wisdom dispensed justice in cases ranging from settling debt claims up to one hundred dollars to meting out fines for those guilty of any noise, rout or amusement on the Sabbath. As genealogists, we most frequently meet their names on our great grandfather's marriage record. The first justices were commissioned by Governor Shadrach Bond from recommendations forwarded to him from the General Assembly.

The following men served as the first Illinois justices of the peace. The names below are as they appear in the Executive Record*, Volume I, pages 3 through 8. Marion County's Bravest Woman

From an account by Territorial Governor
Reynolds in his papers.

Marion Earl Brimberry
Box 111
Alma, Ill. 62807

The most desperate single-handed combat with the Indians, ever fought on the soil of Illinois, was that of Tom Higgins, 21 August 1814. Higgins was 25 years old, of a muscular and compact build, not tall, but strong and active. In danger he possessed a quick and discerning judgement, and was without fear. He was a member of Journey's Rangers, consisting of 11 men, stationed at Hills Fort, 8 miles southwest of the present Greenville, Bond County. Discovering Indian signs near the fort the company early the following morning started on the trail. They had not gone far before they were in an ambush of a large party of Indians. At the first fire, their Commander Journey and 3 men fell. Six retreated to the fort in flight, but Higgins stopped "to have another pull at the red skins" and taking deliberate aim at a straggling savage, shot him down. Higgins horse had been wounded at the first fire, as he supposed, mortally, but coming to, he was about to effect his escape, when the familiar voice of Burgess hailed him from the long grass, "Tom don't leave me." Higgins told him to come along, but Burgess replied that his leg was smashed.

Higgins attempted to raise him on his horse, but the animal took fright and ran away. Higgins then directed Burgess to limp off as best he could, and by crawling through the grass he reached the fort, while the former loaded his gun and remained behind to protect him against the pursuing enemy. When Burgess was well out of the way, throw any wandering enemy off the trail, Higgins took another route which led by a small thicket. Here he was unexpectedly confronted by 3 savages approaching. He ran to a little ravine near at hand for shelter, but in the effort discovered for the first time that he was badly wounded in the leg. He was closely pressed by the largest, powerful Indian, who lodged a ball in his thigh. He fell, but instantly rose again, only to draw the fire of the other two and again fell wounded. The Indians now advanced on him with their tomahawks and scalping knives, but as he presented his gun first at one, then the other, from his place in the ravine, each wavered in his purpose. Neither party had time to load, and the large Indian, supposing finally that Higgins gun was empty, rushed forward with uplifted tomahawk and a yell, but as he came near enough, was shot dead. At this, the others raised the war whoop and rushed upon the wounded. Higgins and now a hand to hand conflict ensued. They darted at him with their knives time and again, inflicting many ghastly fles h wounds which bled profusely. One of the assailants threw his tomahawk at him with such precision as to sever his ear and lay bare his skull, knocking him down. They now rushed in on him, but he kicked them off, and grasping one of their spears thrust at him, was raised up by it. He quickly seized his gun, and by a powerful blow crushed in the skull on one, but broke his rifle. His remaining antagonist still kept up the contest making thrusts with his knife at the bleeding and exhausted Higgins, which he parried with the broken gun as best he could. Most of the desperate engagement was in plain view of the Fort, but the rangers, having been in one ambush saw in this fight only a ruse to draw out the balance of the garrison. But a Mrs.

Lydia Pursley, residing at the Fort, no longer able to see so brave a man contend unaided for his life, seized a gun and mounting a horse, started to his rescue. When almost there the man took courage and hastened along. The Indian, seeing Mrs. Pursley coming took flight. Higgins being nearly backed to pieces, fainted from the loss of blood. He was carried to the Fort. There being no surgeon, his comrades cut two balls from his flesh, the others remained in. For days his life was despaired of, but by tender nursing, he ultimately recovered his health, badly crippled for the rest of his life. He resided in Fayette County for many years, where XXXXXXXXXX he raised a large family. In addition to a pension he was a door keeper at the General Assembly at Vandalia: William Pursley and his wife Lydia Little came to what is now Tonti Township, Marion County, Illinois in 1820. They settled on section 14 and later entered this farm. William was quite old when they came and he died soon after.

One of their children married Eli W. Jones (Louisa) a son of the widow Jones of Foster Township. When Eli and Louisa went to Navarro County, Texas Lydia went along and died there. (Near Corsicana).

RIDLEY FAMILY IN JONES COUNTY

Dr. Charles Lewis Ridley, son of Dr. James B. Ridley, and Mary Lewis Ridley of Oxford, N. C., after graduating at the University of N. C., and Medical Department of the University of Pennsylvania, located at Hillsboro, Georgia, in Jasper County just over the Jones County line in 1820. He married Susan Bonner of Hancock County, and they had three sons. James Bromfield Ridley, Hamilton Bonner, and Robert Burton. Dr. Ridley practiced his profession in Jasper, Jones and Putnam counties. In 1836, he purchased a plantation in upper Northwest Jones County, where he continued to practice his profession and operate a farm until the time of his death.

Dr. Ridley was a member of the Secession Convention at Mill-Edgeville just prior to the Civil War. He was opposed to secession and so voted, however, after Georgia seceded he converted his money into Confederate bonds, and his two oldest sons went into the armed service of the Confederacy. Dr. James B. Ridley the eldest of the 3 sons was Surgeon Major of the 6th Georgia

In the 1880 Navarro County Texas census, page 9, 81-85 the Thos. P. Jones would appear to be the brother of Eli that Ms Kahlert mentions as child no. 3, Thomas Palme or Polme. She says he was born in G. 6 Jan 1798 and died in Texas in 1888. If so, he obviously did not come to Illinois with the rest of the Jones family or perhaps returned to Ga. to get married.

I can't think of much else at this time except to ask again if you know the full name of the Mary Black. Was Black her maiden name or the name of her first husband?

Please do send what you have on the Pursley family in IL I would be glad to compare it with what I have. Oh yes and before I forget it I should tell you that there is another Eli Jones in early MarCo History. He is Eli W. Jones the son of James and Laura (Llewellyn) Jones. James was a brother of our Eli. Eli W. was born in MarCo 20 Apr 1839.

I'll close for now and get this in the mail.

Thanking you, I remain,

nearly dead, cut and mangled, and almost torn to pieces.

Governor Reynolds states that Higgins never fully recovered and that he received a pension to the full amount of the law. Such a woman was the first white woman to live in Tonti township. Some of her descendants still live in this county. In 1823 William Marshall settled in the east part of Tonti township. He was a farmer, teacher, Justice of the Peace and a fiddler. It is told of him that he would walk to the home of a bride-to-be, perform the marriage ceremony, and then take his fiddle, play all night for the wedding dance and often the fee was not more than "two bits." Marshall was the first County Surveyor. In 1838 he moved to near what is now Fairman in Carrigan township, where he died. John Eddington also came to Tonti in 1823. William Nichols also settled in the northwest part of the township in 1823. He owned one slave and moved to Missouri in 1826. William Marshall bought his place, which afterward was owned by John S. Martin, who was an enterprising, intelligent man of considerable means and who owned at his death about two thousand acres of land in the neighborhood of this farm. The Nichols land is still in the Martin family. John S. Martin was the father of Gen. James S. Martin, who commanded the One Hundred and Eleventh Illinois Infantry in the Civil war. John S. Martin died at Alma in 1865. Thomas Allmon came from Tennessee in received the name of the Allmon peach, noted in this county, as one of the most perfect of cling peaches. John Davidson was a settler in 1828 and lived in this and Carrigan township many years. Robert Nichols improved a farm in this township in 1823 and lived on it until he died in 1836. He was the eldest of eighteen children, several of whom lived in this county.

Britton Smith came to Tonti in 1827. When he came to the township, there were only seven families in the township, he making the eighth. They were the Widow Pursley, a sketch of whom is given above, William Marshall, Thomas Allmon, John Eddington, Ross Jones, John Davidson and Robert Nichols. Mordecai and Britton Smith came to Salem in 1829 and their father, Abraham Smith, followed them to Marion county in 1831 and settled in Tonti township, where he died in 1854. Britton was a stage driver on the Vincennes and St. Louis route a long time. He afterward married and settled on section 5, where he died. Israel Jennings moved from Walnut Hill and settled on section 31 about 1831.

James Black, of whom mention is made in the county section, settled on section 17, in 1831. He raised a family of ten children and the Blacks and their descendants are allied to many of the best families in the county. Charles Purcell came from Tennessee in 1832 and settled on land in section 2. He died here in 1846. He raised a family

L. S. JENNINGS FAMILY AMONG EARLY CITIZENS

Mount Sharp has not always been the prosperous community it is. As early as 1874, and even earlier, a few settlers lived on that portion of Onion Creek. L. S. JENNINGS and family were among the first settlers. Mr. Jennings attended church at old Gatlin in the early days, when that region was considered as belonging to the frontier.

The families then were Wm. PURSLEY, John G. WEAVER, Wyatt WARREN and Marion MASSEY. Later, Hugh ODOM, Mr. GREEN, John HAYWOOD, Mr. NER, Mrs. HARMON and Wm. GARNETT became citizens of the community.

The writer remembers a very old man with snow-white hair and a kind face, whose name was GAYNOR, "Grandpa Gaynor" he was called. This old gentleman was one of the very first settlers. My Uncle lived at his place and this grand old man lived in the house with him.

Like all the new settlements, a little school house, which was also used as a church, stood on a hillside. A Mr. JOHNSON taught the first school.

The settlement had its camp ground, Revs. WALLACE and STRINGER conducting camp meetings there in the early days.

Later a new school house was built, which was used for all community purposes. Mr. Montgomery BELL, from Blanco, held services in this house.

The neighborhood now has a post office, with two rural mail routes.

The teachers of this school during all these years are too numerous to mention, but among them in later years are Mrs. Frances JENNINGS, Mrs. Ellen BELL, and Miss Nina YOUNG.

Bob ROSS CAME THERE IN THE EARLY DAYS, raising his family at the old ROSS home. All have moved away except Mr. John ROSS of Henly.

Two families by the name of CALHOUN, who are still there, have contributed their support to the upbuilding of the neighborhood.

Mount Sharp, like all mountain communities, has its good features, but public spirited citizens have contributed their all to the upbuilding of their home neighborhood until no section can excel this part of the country.

War ended the whole prospect. San Marcos again became the county seat, as attested by the reminiscences of Joe Cruze and the writings of Spencer Guimarin in early 1969 issues of the Wimberley Mill.

Again in 1881, the county began to consider a more central site, so Hays City was begun anew about three miles west of the former site, on the old Cruze ranch. This time buildings were constructed, but they burned and a vote by the people retained the county seat at San Marcos. Both places had destructive fires, particularly San Marcos, where the old court house records were burned. When the county voted in December, 1881, the county seat stayed at San Marcos.

In the meantime, Hezekiah Williams had started fencing his land west of Kyle with barbed wire, in the manner of a man named Grenninger, in Travis County. In both cases neighbors who were closed out from water, etc., cut the wire. He surveyed and laid out the town in 1908, according to Guimarin. Soon there was a hotel, the usual stable and blacksmith shop, a general store, and church, also used for a school. Although he lost his bid for the removal of the county seat from San Marcos to his new town of Hays City, he kept planning and trying. His paper advertised rates at the hotel as fifty cents a night and meals for two bits. He had summer barbecues and auctions of lots as part of his promotion but again the bid for Hays City as county seat was lost.

After Williams died, the old hotel was used in the making of a silent picture, "Down by the Rio Grande" in 1916, starring Lillian Russell and William S. Hart. And the Baptist Church building of old Hays City was moved to Wimberley where it serves as the First Christian Church.¹

After leaving Hays City and continuing on the road to Wimberley, you pass another sign indicating Mt. Sharp. This place too is gone, and much of its history as well. It was in the 1870's that the following settlers and their families arrived at their site on Onion Creek: William Garnett, John Haywood, L. S. Jennings, Marion Massey, Hugh Odom, William Pursley, Wyatt Warrick, and John G. Weaver. Mount Sharp was once a part of Yell, but in January 1905 it had a post office of its own with John M. Ross as postmaster.

FOSTER TOWNSHIP.

(MARION COUNTY.)

S in the northern part of the county, occupying all of town four north, range two east, and is bounded on the north by Fayette county; on the east by Kimmunity; on the south by Tonti; and on the west by Patoka townships. The East Fork of the Kaskaskia river flows through the southern part of the township. The North Fork flows through the northern part. These streams flow in a south-westerly direction, and by them and their tributaries the township is well drained.

Hardy Foster, in whose honor the township was named, was born in Georgia, and was one of the prominent pioneer citizens of the county. He was the first settler here, beginning an improvement on section seventeen in 1823. He came here from St. Clair county, Illinois, where he had lived since 1814. He resided on section 17 until 1851, then moving farther north, made an improvement on section 8.

He built a cabin on the Vandalia and Salem State road. This was about equi-distant between the two towns, and the stage-stand was located here. About 1833 a post-office was established, and Mr. Foster was the post-master until his death in 1863. He entered the land where he lived August 15th, 1831, now where his son, Harmon Foster, resides.

He was a justice of the peace many years, and represented the county in the legislature, and was prominently identified in the county through his entire residence here. He had the first horse-mill in the township. He put up this mill about 1833. It stood just south of his residence. He continued to operate the mill until about 1859.

He raised a family of eight children, two sons and three daughters now living; his wife survived him many years.

The next settlement was made by Mrs. Jones and family of four children on section eighteen in 1826. When she came here her children were about grown. Her sons were Eli W., Joseph A. and Samuel B. Her daughter Elizabeth married soon after they settled here to John F. Holt, eldest son of Harmon Holt, the first settlers of Patoka township. This was the first marriage in the two townships. Holt settled down to farming near his father's, but subsequently moved to this township, and in company with Joseph A. Jones, his brother-in-law, entered the first piece of land, eighty acres, January 4th, 1830, on the east half of the south-west quarter of section ten.

J. A. Jones settled on section fifteen, where he lived until his death in 1844, leaving a widow and six young children.

Eli W. Jones also married, soon after his mother settled here, to Miss Louisa Pursley, daughter of Wm. Pursley, of Tonti township. He settled near his mother's, where he improved a small place, and lived there until about 1836. He then entered land that year in section 28, where he improved a farm. He was twice married, and raised a family of eleven children. In 1858 he moved to Texas, where he died about ten years ago.

Samuel B. Jones, the youngest of the family, made an improvement on section 11 in 1832, where he lived until 1873. He now resides in Fosterburg. He was justice of the peace many years, is a jovial old gentleman, and delights in talking of the early times here. He has a fair education and a good memory, and is very accurate on the early history of the county. He has raised a family of twelve children.

James Jones, the oldest son of the widow Jones, was born in Georgia in 1795. For some time he was in the employ of the government, in the capacity of a guard, guarding the surveyors when the State was surveyed. He married Miss Laura Jewell of Clinton county, Illinois, in 1824. Three years later he came to this settlement, and located on section six, where he remained several years. He then went to Missouri, and after one year he returned and settled permanently on section nine, this being in 1832, where he continued to reside until the time of his death in 1865. Part of his old residence still stands. His aged wife survived him, and is now the oldest lady in the township. She lives with her children. They raised a family of eleven children, six yet living—three sons and three daughters.

Andrew H. Foster, a nephew of Hardy Foster, settled on section twenty-one in 1833. Three years later he entered forty acres in that section, where his cabin stands, the north-west quarter of the north-west quarter, where he afterwards improved a good farm. He was a justice of the peace here for some time. He was twice married, raised a family of ten children, and died on the place he improved. His widow still lives on the old homestead.

Moses Garrett located on section ten in 1831. He was a native of Georgia, filled the office of justice of the peace many years, and raised a large family of children.

Isaac Nichols settled west of the Ross Jones place, now the Caldwell place, in 1830, where he resided until his death.

Thomas Moon located on section 16 in 1834. He was from New York State, and was one of the first teachers. The first school-house stood near his cabin on the same section. Moon lived here many years, and then moved to Missouri, where he died about five years ago.

Mark Cole, Jonathan Green, Jesse and Daniel Doolen, settled near the north fork about 1836. They improved farms here, and were prominent farmers in their time. All raised families.

Ross Jones, who first settled near Salem, located on the Vandalia and Salem State road, north of the East Fork one mile, about 1836. He improved a good farm here.

Jackson C. Jones, his oldest son, is one of the prominent farmers of Kimmunity township. H. B. Jones, the youngest son, lives on the old homestead; they are the only members of the family now living.

M. Smith settled on the State road near the East Fork, where he now lives, in 1831.

William Howard came here with Hardy Foster. He was a single man and a noted hunter; remained here some time; never made ifty years of the county's political existence, with scarcely ible deviation. In order to illustrate the gradual increase lation and wealth, the following tabular statement was pre-

HISTORY OF MARION AND CLINTON COUNTIES, ILLINOIS.

	Population	Assessed values	Wealth per capita
1823	550	$ 14,690	$ 26.50
1830	2,125	75,650	35.60
1840	4,742	238,080	50.20
1850	6,720	482,490	71.80
1860	12,739	1,651,140	129.85
1870	20,622	3,453,098	167.45
1880	23,691	4,452,424	187.93 population is now 43 times as large as in 1823, while the assessment of taxable property in 1880 is over 300 times as great as in 1823.

The average wealth per capita now is seven times the wealth of 1823. Allowing five persons to every family, the average assessed value per family is very near one thousand dollars, and it is safe to say that the actual value of property is twice as high as the assessed value.

lands, People, etc.—The field-notes of the county give an area of 364,000 acres, a very small proportion of which, some 3,000 acres, were swamp or overflowed lands. The county to whom those lands were granted in pursuance of an Act of Congress, approved March 3, 1807, has sold all with the exception of 160 acres. Those lands were sold from $1.50 to $2.50 per acre.

It has been stated that but 1,040 acres of that vast area of 364,000 acres had become the property of actual and permanent settlers by the year 1821, nor did the "squatters" show any disposition to become the proprietors of their homesteads for many more years. In 1852, when the Illinois Central Railroad Company located its route, viz: all lands remaining unsold and undisposed of in the alternate sections designated by even numbers for six sections on each side of the railroad were found in the county of Marion, 94,154 acres in said sections, designated by even numbers;

therefore but reasonable to presume, that the sections, designated by odd numbers, contained an equal quantity of unsold land, or in other words, not more than 165,000 acres of those 364,000 acres had become the property of individuals prior to the year 1852.
When the lands have all been entered, the last tract mentioned in the entry book, viz: the east half of the north-west quarter of section 25 in township 1 north, range 1 east, was bought by John Clark, on the 28th of April, 1865.

The transactions in the sale of lands between individuals compare with the tardiness of the inhabitants to enter Congress land.

The following lines will give an account of all sales transacted in a period of fifty years.

The first tract of farm land conveyed by deed since the creation of the county was sold by Rufus Ricker, and Lydia, his wife, to D. Baldwin, on the 18th of March, 1823. It was the east half of the northwest quarter of section 33 in township 1 north, range 1 east, 80 acres and sold for $400. Another 80 acres the W. 1/2 of the N. W.
1/4 of Sec. 15, T. 1, N. Range 2 E. was sold in the same year for $110.
There were no conveyances of farm lands recorded in 1824. The year 1825 shows two only, an 80 acre tract in 29, T. 1, R. 1, for $100, and another 80 acre tract in 21, T. 2, R. 2, it brought $300 or $3.75 per acre. The year 1826 witnessed but one sale, 24 acres in 11, T. 2, R. 2, sold for $100. In 1827 we find six land sales deed, three in township 2, R. 2, all in section 11, two eighty tracts at 1.25 per acre, and one 20 acre tract at $3.00 per acre.
There were two sales in T. 1, R. 1, the first 80 acres in Sec. 27, brought $1.87 1/2 per acre.

One 80 acre tract, the first sale in T. 4, R. 4, in Sec. 13, brought $1.87 1/2 per acre. In 1828 there was but one sale of land recorded here. The above described 80 acre tract in Sec. 29, T. 1, R. 1, sold for $200, an advance of 100 per cent. in 3 years. One sale only in 1829, 80 acres in Sec. 26, T. 1, R. 1, at $4.37 1/2 per acre. Three sales in 1830, 96 acres near Salem, bringing $500, and 70 acres west of Salem for $200. An 80 acre tract in Sec. 27, T. 1, R. 1, brought $2.50 per acre. The W. 1/2 of the S. W. 1/4 of 29, T. 1, R. 1, brought $300 or $3.75 per acre. In 1831 the records show but two landsales. The above mentioned 80 acres that had advanced 100 per cent. in 3 years showed another handsome gain, they sold in 1831 for $300; 50 per cent. higher than in 1828. Eighty acres in Sec. 17, T. 1, R. 2, brought $150, and 80 acres in Sec. 9, T. 2, R. 4 (first sale in this township), brought $400. The year 1832 gives an account of one sale only; 80 acres in section 11, township 2, R. 2, at $2.50 per acre.

Thus we find, that in the 10 years immediately succeeding the organization of the county only 20 sales of farm land, conveying 1560 acres of land, took place, and that the prices obtained fluctuated between $1.25 and $5.00 per acre.

The transactions in real estate in the next twenty years do not show a marked increase. In 1840 these land sales amounted to 460 acres, averaging $3.50 per acre, and in 1850 they embraced but 440 acres, at $4.10 per acre.

The value of lands in early days having thus been mentioned, we will now endeavor to give to our readers the various values of personal property of that period. The first administrator's sale in the county, disposing of the personal property of one of its early citizens; Henry Whatley, was held on the 20th of January, 1826; Hardy Foster administrator. The articles sold were not many, as might be expected; but here is the sale bill:

One bay-mare sold to David Luster,	$52.00
One colt " James Atrom,	20.00
One bed " Phil. Luster,	15.12 1/2
One saddle and bridle sold to Henry Luster,	10.12 1/2
One bedstead sold to Hardy Foster,	2.12 1/2
One skillet " Jesse Griffin,	2.00
One pair of saddle-bags sold to Harmon Holt,	1.87 1/2
One razor sold to Hardy Foster,	50
One bottle of castor oil sold to Lane,	50
One butcher knife sold to Jesse Griffin,	25

At another sale, W. Pursley's, March, 1828, hogs were sold for $1.25 each, a sow for $3.25, a plow for $4.00, an ax for $1.50, a hoe for 75 cents, a spinning wheel for $1.00, a loom for $11.00, a counterpane for $2.00, a quilt for 90 cents, well-rope for 75 cents, a yoke of steers for $18.00, a cow for $5.75, a heifer for $2.50, a cart for $5.37 1/2, three chairs for 50 cents each, and a smoothing iron for 50 cents. The articles sold here embrace about all that the wealthier class of people possessed in those days. It is strange, however, that at none of those sales hunters' equipments were offered for sale.

We have not succeeded in discovering the full returns of the earliest elections. The oldest document found is the following abstract of votes given at an election held in and for the county of Marion, on Monday, the 2d day of August, 1824, for county officers, viz:

Mark Tully had	55	votes for Sheriff.
H. C. Nichols "	38	" "
Sam. Davidson "	34	" Coroner.
Benjamin Vermillion had	53	" Commissioner.
Israel Jennings had	43	" "

der Kell, Mordecai Smith, Samuel Gaston, and William Warner.

This jury brought into court on July 26th the following verdict:—

"We, the jury, find the defendant guilty in manner and form as charged in the indictment in this cause."

Motion for a new trial was overruled by the court, and sentence pronounced July 27th, to wit: "That you, James White, be by the sheriff of Marion county, State of Illinois, removed from this court room to the jail of said county, and there be safely and securely kept by said sheriff until Thursday, the 15th day of August next, in the year of our Lord, 1861, and that on said day, between the hours of 10 o'clock in the forenoon, and 5 o'clock in the afternoon, you, James White, shall be by said sheriff, from a gallows to be by him erected, hung by the neck until you are dead."

The desperate character of James White was again proved on the day of his execution. When the officer attempted to take him from his cell, White fought the officer and his attendants. He struck the sheriff a severe blow with a piece of a log chain, and being a most powerful athlete, he actually held the officers at bay for several hours. An effort to stupefy the prisoner by squirting chloroform into the cell, proved abortive. What force and chloroform failed to accomplish, was brought about by a drink of whisky—the agent leading to surrender for a glass of whisky and a dinner—viz.: "I shall eat my dinner here, and my supper I'll take in jail."

The death-warrant, issued by the Circuit Clerk on the 14th of July, 1861, was duly executed on the 15th. We find endorsed that solemn warrant the following:

STATE OF ILLINOIS,) ss.
MARION COUNTY,)

I, Thomas J. Black, Sheriff of the County of Marion, do certify that James White, who was sentenced by the Circuit Court of said county on the 27th day of July, A. D. 1861, to be executed on this day, to wit: Thursday, the 15th day of August, A. D. 1861, between the hours of ten o'clock in the forenoon and five o'clock in the afternoon, was at the time mentioned, in pursuance of said sentence, executed by hanging by the neck until he was dead, in the custody of the jail of said county, in said county, and that the same was conducted and performed in conformity with the provisions of the law of this State concerning capital punishment and of the said sentence.

In witness whereof I have hereto subscribed my name this 15th day of August, A. D. 1861.

T. J. BLACK, Sheriff.
[SEAL]

STATE OF ILLINOIS,) ss.
MARION COUNTY,)

We the undersigned certify that the facts stated in the foregoing certificate of T. J. Black, Sheriff, are correct; that we witnessed said execution, and that said James White was executed at the place and as specified in said certificate, in conformity with the sentence of the court, and the act of February 18th, 1859, of this State. Dated August 15, A. D., 1861, at Salem, Illinois. J. H. Nickell, minister; W. B. Matthews, constable; H. Rockhold, Granville Cheely, Marshal Justice, M. C. Kell, S. Smith, Logan Shelton, J. R. Wood, W. B. Lewis, W. W. Pace, Reuben Chance, J. R. Black, J. Choper, M. D., J. A. Davenport, M. D., and J. S. Sweeney, M. D.

The criminal calendar of the county mentions many more violations of the law, and even the court of Judge Lynch has had its ago, the majesty of the law was outraged by some of the so-called best citizens of the county. Henry Leonard had been arrested in the spring of 1870 on suspicion of being a member of a gang of outlaws and robbers, who had infested the western part of the county, and had become a plague and terror to the inhabitants. The impetuosity of a few hot-headed men carried others with them and on the night of April 20, 1870, the jail in Salem was forcibly entered, and Henry Leonard dragged to the scaffold improvised in a vacant shed west of town. As soon as Samuel R. Carrigan, sheriff of the county, was made aware of what was being done, he started in hot pursuit, and confronted, solitary and alone, a howling mob, who had just hung their victim. Carrigan cut down the wretch, and perceiving symptoms of life, hurried to the city for medical aid, the mob having dispersed. Returning he found the dead body of Leonard. Some of the mob had returned to the scene of the outrage and finding no sheriff there, had beaten their victim to death with clubs and rails. The names of the perpetrators of this act of barbarity have never become known officially. They deserve, however, the punishment meted out to other murderers by the law.

Probate Court.—The early terms of this court were presided over by Rufus Ricker, who in fact conducted the affairs of the county alone, and held five offices at one and the same time. He served as Recorder, Probate Judge, Circuit Clerk, County Clerk, and Justice of the Peace for twelve years.

The estates administered on during the infancy of the county are but few in number and small in value. The first estate administered on was that of Henry Whatley, who died in 1827. The value of the personal property was $121.45, Hardy Foster, administrator.

The estate of William Pursley, March, 1828, amounted to $301.75.

Joshua Pile's estate, February, 1829, $331.95.

James Jackson's estate, March, 1831, $393.75 worth of personal property.

Alexander Chance's estate, May, 1833, valued at $147.65.

Harmon Holt's estate, September, 1833, $402.25.

Samuel Hayes' estate, December, 1833, $99.30.

Seven estates, with assets of $1797.10 in the aggregate.

The first will was probated September, 1829; it contains a legacy of a pot and a pail to a beloved wife, etc., as follows.

FIRST WILL PROBATED.

Dear Mrs. Pursley,

I was happily surprised to see your letter in the Footprints of Marion County, IL. You seem to be working on several of the same lines as me. Eli Jones parents are also my ancestors, his sister married my ancestor, Hardy Foster. My mother was a Nichols from Marion Co. IL.

I doubt very much that I can help you, but I wonder if you can give me some info. I, too, am a descendent of Wm. and Lydia (Little) Pursley, and I have searched for years to find where they came from.

A Wm. Pursley is found in the history of the "State of Franklin". He received a Land Grant in Washington Co. (later Greene Co.) Tennessee for his revolutionary service in N. C. and paid tax in the years 1879 and 1890. There was also a Wm. Pursley in Clark's army in Illinois.

I believe that one of these two men would be the father of our Wm. Pursley. However, Brink's History of Marion Co. says that Wm. Pursley was much older than his wife Lydia. So it is possible that our Wm. Pursley could be the same one that served in the Revolution with Clark. Many of Clark's men came back to IL and settled in the vicinity. If this is the case, Lydia could have been the second wife of Wm.

I did not have the wife of Wm. Jr. so your letter completed my list of spouses for their children. My g g grandmother was Sarah Pursley, who married Mordecai Smith in Marion Co. IL, 23 Jun 1831.

Lydia Pursley is found in the Fed. Census of 1830 & 1840 as a widow living in Marion Co. so I knew she went to Texas sometime after that but I never knew the exact date, and I had never been able to trace the place that they went to in Texas. Do you know why they went to Texas?

Could you send me the death date of Lydia Pursley? (I assume she never re-married). I would also appreciate any Texas Census records you might have. I have some info on the family I could send to you in return.

Thanking you, I remain,

Sincerely yours

26 July 1977

Dear Clairene,

Sorry for the delay in writing, but we have had a busy summer. Philip, Our 14 year old, had hepatitis in January of this year and has never completely recovered. In June we took him to a different doctor and he was in the hospital for tests. They removed a lymph node and sent it to be tested. The doctor suggested he go through a clinic, so we spent two week-ends in July in Champaign Illinois with him. Luckily they found no malignancy, so I guess we will just have to let nature take its course.

16 July was my father's 83rd birthday so 30 of his descendents gathered at Alma to help him celebrate. There were also about 30 other friends and relatives from MarCo there for a picnic lunch on that Sat. Most of us stayed through the weekend with him.

Joe came home with some of our older children and Laurie Jo and I stayed with dad for the rest of that week. Needless to say, I spent some time in the MarCo courthouse. I am enclosing a list of what I found on the Pursley family. Most of it will only confirm what I sent to you before from Mr. Brinkerhoff.

3.11.77 date
The MarCo courthouse is the worst I have ever worked in--all I could do in the County Clerk's office was look at the index books. Any date that you want you have to buy. However they did let the LSD church microfilm their records and I'm going to try to get them through the IL State Archives through the library. When I do, if I do, I will send you more specific dates.

I went into the land office at the courthouse and was unable to find any record of the Pursley land claim. They told me I would probably have to find the owner of the land now and see if he would let me read the abstract. This I was not able to do. I could not find the name in the grantor-grantee book.

It was after I got back to Orion and re-read my marriage records that I found the Samuel Parker-Lydia Perisley marriage in about 1847-1848. Then I wondered if our Lydia had re-married before she left MarCo and signed the deed with the name Lydia Parker. Would you be able to check the Walker County, Texas Census list to see if there was a Sam and Lydia Parker there?

Of course, I could be wrong about this since I did not have any ages to go by. The Lydia who was married could have been a daughter of Robert.

Pascagoula Public Library

Pursley Family

I have never, but never, heard that Lydia Pursley married before she left Illinois. But since it appears from the birth of John and Gruin B.'s children on the Walker Co TX census records that you sent me that they left about 1847 she could have been married to Parker shortly before they left.

I think the Gruin B. Pensley marriage to Martha Ann Parker is the one we have been looking for. Even though she is using the name Mary in TX. One of their children is named Mary M., which could be Mary Martha. I have reasoned that Samuel Parker is probably her father and they all left together.

After Laurie Jo and I left dad's we went to Louisville, the county seat of Clay County, I was still looking for the marriage of Thomas Nichols and Susan Howell, and found nothing for y family. As long as I was there I copied the following dates that I thought you might be interested in.

Book A	Whitely, Martin Nancy Bishop	23 Aug 1830
	Whitely, Thomas Malinda Sapp	16 Jan 1843
	Grancher, George Nancy Whitley	4 Mar 1830

When we left Louisville we wandered through some back country roads and finally arrived at Vandalia, the county seat of Fayette County. (Still looking for Thomas and Susan) Again I had no luck, but I found still more info for you.

Book A	Sharpe Whitley
Page 1	Sarah Little	29 Dec 1821
	(Bond signed by John A. Wakefield)
	(Marriage performed by same)

John A. Wakefield was a county commissioner therefore was probably no relation to either party. Or, things being as they were in early Illinois settlements, may have been related to both parties. I am enclosing a list of Fayette Co marriages since there were several other Little's in the records.

A funny thing happened while I was in this court house. About the time I was copying the above marriage some of the court house ladies were there talking about strange names, one of them was talking about the Earps and mentioned that there were a lot of Earps in Barton Co., Missouri. I copied this info at the top of one of the pages to send along to you. What a co-incidence if this is the same family you are looking for.

I seem to be finding all kinds of Whitley info this week. This is from the IL Library Magazine. People who were squatters in IL before 5 Feb 1813 could get free land. Here is what I found.

Whitley, Mills

Apparently their grant was approved. I can't tell you much more about it. The land was apparently in what was then St. Clair County and is now in another county. For further info you can write to the

Illinois State Archives

I don't know of much more at this time so I'll try to get this in the mail after I get some Xerox copies of the marriages for you. Hope you are felling well after your bout with blood pressure.

Personally appeared McCasland Wallace a resident of said District duly sworn saith that he was well acquainted with John and Mary Pursley whose heirs are now applicants for a pension from the spring of seventeen hundred and ninety three up to the death of the said Mary and John Pursley. John Pursley died the spring of 1803, and his widow Mary the spring of 1845. He further says at the time he became acquainted with the said John and Mary Pursley their family were all born but Margaret and Sarah, to wit William, and James, Jenny, Mary, John Nancy, Garvin, and the two first mentioned who were twins and born shortly after he became acquainted with the said John and Mary Pursley and further that William eldest son of John and Mary Pursley from appearance was a boy of fourteen or fifteen years of age the spring of seventeen hundred and ninety three and has often heard James Stewart and his sister say they saw John and Mary Pursley going to and coming from Col. Wm. Brattons the day they were married which the deponent understood was before the reduction of Charleston and that Jenny Pursley their eldest daughter was their third child as stated above. This deponent further says that he was also well acquainted with Johnathan Sutton Esqr., deceased, who lived a close neighbor to John and Mary Pursley and believes the Register appended to the deposition of Mary Sutton, widow of James Sutton to be the handwriting of the said Johnathan Sutton. That is the record of James, John, and Alexander, who were his only children by his first wife, he further says that she said John and Mary Pursley lived after they were married as the deponent has always understood near Col. Hills Iron Works in said District in time of the War of the Revolution from which place he moved and settled where his heirs are now living.

This poem was dedicated to Mr. and Mrs. Del La Voi, who were living on the Ramsey ranch at the time the author was here. The La Vois have moved from here and the "Drifter's" name has been forgotten but we wish to thank them all for leaving these words with us.

DOCTORS

Although Driftwood has never had a resident doctor, several from other communities have practiced here over the years. Among these were Doctors W. E. Holtzclaw and Clay Lauderdale of Buda, Dr. Berkley of Wimberley and Dripping Springs, and Doctors Pound and E. P. Shelton of Dripping Springs.

Of all these the one who served the people in this area the longest, and is the best remembered was beloved Doctor E. (Ed) P. Shelton. He came to the hill country of Hays County in 1890, a young man fresh out of medical school. He was a native of Manchaca, Texas and came from there to Dripping Springs to start his practice of medicine and to gain experience—so he said—before moving on to other places. He never moved and when he died in 1946 he had lived and practiced medicine in this area for fifty-six years.

He married Miss Lula Spaw, a member of a pioneer family of Dripping Springs, and they had thirteen children and reared several grandchildren.

He was a typical country doctor of the era in which he lived, on call day and night and never refused to go when called. Many a night saw him going to a patient's home when the weather was neither fit for man nor beast. He traveled on horseback, in a buggy, and later in a Model T Ford and some later models of cars. He often forded the creeks when his horse had to swim. When the people had no money with which to pay for his services he took his pay in the fruit of the land—eggs, butter, fruit, meat (ham, sausage and bacon) and what-have-you.

He was the son of a Confederate Veteran and helped establish the Camp Ben McCulloch Veteran's organization at Driftwood and attended the Reunions each year. He camped at these affairs each year with his large family and was the camp doctor. As his children grew up, married and moved away from Dripping Springs, these Reunions served as a family reunion of them also. Dr. and

William Pursley Letters, 1863

Contributed by J. D. HOWARD

William Pursley enlisted for six months in Company C, 4th Cavalry Battalion, Texas State Troops, which was recruited and mustered in Hays County, during the summer of 1863, by Captain W. H. D. Carrington. The company was among the state troops concentrated on the Texas coast between Houston and Beaumont by Major General John B. Magruder in the fall of 1863, following the Union attack at Sabine Pass in September. On October 31, 1863, Pursley's company was stationed at Liberty, but the unit was transferred to the vicinity of Beaumont by mid-November. The company was later reorganized and mustered at Camp Terry on March 16, 1864.¹

Pursley, who at the age of fifty in 1863 was not eligible for conscription, was a volunteer member of the state troops who served as home guards on the frontier and as reserves for the Confederate forces along the Texas coast. While on coastal duty he apparently wrote home quite often though only four of his letters still exist, written in November and December, 1863. These letters, devoid of punctuation and filled with phonetical spelling, have a distinctive frontier flavor, and clearly capture the spirit of a family man serving his state with little interest in the events of the war and every thought centered on home.

²The 21st Texas Infantry Battalion was raised in May, 1862, and served in Texas throughout the war. Under Lieutenant Colonel William H. Griffin the battalion had taken part in the recapture of Galveston and in a skirmish at Sabine Pass early in 1863. Later three companies of the battalion played a prominent part in the Confederate victory at Calcasieu Pass in May, 1864. Thereafter in 1864, the battalion was combined with the 11th Texas Battalion to form the 21st Texas Infantry Regiment under Colonel Ashley W. Spaight.

Ludwell Bacon, claiming 1,000 arpens of land. See book No. 7, page 192.

A majority of the Board are of opinion that this claim ought to be confirmed to the said Ludwell Bacon, or to his legal representatives, according to the concession. James H. Relfe, commissioner, dissenting. See book No. 7, page 216.

GEORGE PURSLEY, claiming 800 arpens.

No.	Name of original claimant.	Arpens.	Nature and date of claim.	By whom granted.	By whom surveyed, date and situation.
315	George Pursley.	800	Settlement right.

Evidence with reference to minutes and records.]

October 28th, 1808. Board met. Present: the honorable Clement B. Penrose and Frederick Bates.

William Russell, assignee of George Pursley, claiming 1,100 arpens of land, situate waters of Point Labadie creek, district of St. Louis, produces to the Board a notice to the recorder, and a deed of transfer from George Pursley to claimant, dated 2d September, 1807.

Aaron Colvin sworn, says that George Pursley, seven years ago, built a cabin on the tract claimed, and commenced clearing some ground, but never finished it; he knows of nothing else being done on the land by or for him, said Pursley.

Ambrose Boles, sworn, says that George Pursley was living on the tract claimed in April, 1803, had a garden fenced in and something growing in it, when he was driven off by the Indians. For permission to settle, see Mackay's list. Laid over for decision. See book No. 3, page 336.

April 16th, 1810. Board met. Present: John B. C. Lucas and Frederick Bates, commissioners.

William Russell, assignee of George Pursley, claiming 1,100 arpens of land. See book No. 3, page 336. The following testimony in the foregoing claim, transcribed from the rough minutes, as perpetuated by the Board on the 17th January, 1810:

Peter Pritchett, duly sworn, says that Pursley inhabited and cultivated the land claimed in the spring of 1803; that he, witness saw vegetables growing at that time on said land; that on or about the 3d of April, same year, the Indians killed a man by the name of Ridenhour in the same settlement; that the settlement, in consequence of said Ridenhour being killed, broke up. Witness says that George McFall, by permission of said Pursley, inhabited said land in the fall of said year; that Pursley's family in the year 1803 consisted of his wife and four or five children. Witness says that the inhabitants generally returned to the settlement in the fall of 1803.

It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be granted. See book No. 4, page 323.

St. Louis, December 19, 1813. William Russell, assignee of George Pursley, claiming 800 arpens of land, said to be on the waters of Point Labadie creek, county of St. Louis; produces deed from Pursley, dated 2d September, 1807. Recorded in book D, page 322.

Thomas Gibson, duly sworn, says that George Pursley raised a house on this tract in 1802, in the fall. In the spring of 1803 he moved on the tract and cultivated it. In that year, 1803, this settlement was broken up by an inroad of the Indians. A small field was in cultivation when the Indians drove him away. McFall, when the danger ceased, went upon this tract under Pursley, by purchase or permission. Thinks it was in the fall following, to wit, fall of 1803. The winter succeeding the term of McFall's taking possession, said McFall inhabited the premises.

John McMickle, duly sworn, says that he was at McFall's on this tract in 1804. Said McFall was making sugar. At that time there was a good cabin inhabited by McFall. There was ground clear and fenced at that time. Said tract has been inhabited and cultivated for six years past, constantly. See Bates's minutes, page 83.

June 18th, 1835. The Board met, pursuant to adjournment. Present: F. R. Conway, J. H. Relfe, commissioners.

George Pursley, by his legal representatives, claiming 800 arpens of land, situate on Point Labadie creek. See record-book D, page 323, for notice of 1,100 arpens; book E, for notice for abandoning over 800 arpens; minutes, book No. 3, page 336; No. 4, page 323; Bates's minutes, page 24, where the same is "not granted." See book No. 7, page 192.

August 17th, 1835. The Board met, pursuant to adjournment. Present: F. R. Conway, J. H. Relfe, F. H. Martin, commissioners.

George Pursley, claiming 800 arpens of land. See book No. 7, page 192.

The Board are unanimously of opinion that 640 acres of land ought to be granted to the said George Pursley, or to his legal representatives, according to possession. See book No. 7, page 217.

Dear Clairene,

Thank you so much for your letter of 23 Feb. (Would you believe, I have already had two interruptions since I started to write this letter -- Our 8 year old, Laurie Jo, called from school that she had forgotten her picture money this morning. So I took it to school, and our 27 year old, Tamara, called to talk for a while and invite us to her two year old Christy's birthday party next Saturday)

Thank you for your offer to send the page from the IL SGSQ but I think I'll order it when I pay my late dues for 1977. I hope to get those and the MarCo dues paid this week. Do you belong to the Ill SGC? If so, the Summer issue of 1975 had Bond Co (early) marriages, and I noticed the name Whitley in there. If you don't belong I'll send you a list of some of the marriages I think you would be interested in.

I think that all families must feel like your husband does about people who work on their family tree. My family all think I'm crazy and Tammy tells me that none of her friends mother's go to the library twice a week to spend the afternoon. I just tell her that it keeps me out of trouble, and the only thing I like to do better is play bridge.

The Ella Shuffler (people in Marion Co. usually pronounce it this way) you mention is of course my grandmother, Louella Chandler Shreffler. She was always called Ella during the time that I knew her. I didn't know that she had ever considered going to Texas but she did, sometime in the 1920's spend two winters in New Mexico seeking a cure for TB. Her husband was dead by this time and I believe her son Leslie went with her. Harry E Shreffler is my father, not my grandfather.

Grandma Shreffler did live at Alma, IL, which is where my parents returned after dad retired. They went back there in 1965 and Mom was buried in the Alma Cemetery. I am not able to place the Logan or Robins names. Posa was a name in the Chandler line that was used several times, but I can't place it with the Smith line. If I were guessing, I would think that she might be a descendent of the Nancy Pursley-Mordacai Ballance line. It seems to me that some of them married into the Neal family and this might be a daughter of them.

My parents left Marion County and moved to northern Ill. when I was nine (in 1936), and I have so many ancestors down there that I have trouble sorting them all out. The Chandlers, Smiths, Nichols, Howells, Eagans, Fosters, and Jones were all in Marion County very early. Some of them like the Pursleys were there before it was a county.

HISTORY OF MARION AND CLINTON COUNTIES, ILLINOIS.

Rachel Gaston, in Stevenson township; Cynthia Mercer, in Raccoon township; and Samuel Allen Huff, in Kansas.

The early surveyors of this part of the state were called "rangers," and to these Samuel Huff belonged. His daughter, Cynthia, remembers when there were only two houses in Salem, those of Mark Tully and Rufus Ricker. She heard the famous Lorenzo Dow preach at Salem in 1828, and remembers his text, an account of which may be found in the chapter on Raccoon township, published in this volume.

Mr Huff subsequently removed to a place south-west of Salem, where he died. Sherrard and McKinney were among the early settlers of Walnut Hill prairie. They came from North Carolina, but of their later movements nothing is definitely known. In 1822 James Chance, a native of Tennessee, came to this county with a large family and settled in Salem, where he opened a blacksmith-shop.

Several years later he removed to another part of the county, and in 1835 took up his residence in Fredonia prairie, where in 1861 he died. Some of his children are still residing in the county; others are living in Texas.

William Nichols, of Tennessee, settled in this county prior to 1823, and in 1826 removed to Missouri. William Pursley was the first settler within the limits of the present township of Tonti. His arrival here dates back to 1822, and his death occurred shortly afterwards. His widow, whose maiden name was Lydia Little, survived him many years.

It was she that rescued the intrepid frontiersman, Thomas Higgins, from the Indians, within sight of Fort Hill, near Greenville, Illinois, after he had been deserted by his comrades. This heroic act has given to her name a historic lustre that will ever remain bright in the early annals of this country. She was a medium-sized woman, and, in dauntless bravery, a true pioneer. Her skill in the use of the rifle was equal to that of any man, and her cool courage never failed her even in the most dangerous situations. She was the mother of nine children, all of whom are dead. Several of her grandchildren, however, still live in the county. About twenty years ago she went to Texas, and soon afterwards died.

Cornelius Danham was the first settler in what is now Meacham township. He came with his family from New York, as early as 1823, and made improvements on section thirteen. In 1836 he went to Iowa, and his family to Wisconsin. William Tully, a native of Virginia, came from Tennessee to this county prior to 1825, and became a resident of Salem. About the year 1835, he removed to another part of the county, and seven years later went to Texas, where he died. In 1824 David Felton, of Tennessee, came to the county. He had a family of eight children, four boys, and four girls. In 1817 he died, at the advanced age of 94 years. Letitia Duncan, whose husband was in the war of 1812, and died in a hospital after the battle of New Orleans, came at an early day, with her family, of ten children, to Tennessee, and settled in this county. In 1814 she removed to another part of the county, where, in 1846, she died. Of five of her children now resides in the county. John W. Nichols, born in Smith county, Tennessee, emigrated to Illinois in 1823, and settled, the same year, on the site of the present town of Kinmundy, in this county, where he divided his time between farming and hunting. His nearest neighbors then lived five miles distant. Leaving there in 1827, he went to Wisconsin, where he married Mary Beau, and the next year returned to this county. In 1829 he removed to Fayette county, but in 1836 became a resident of Salem. The next year he located permanently in Meacham township, where he now resides, his age being 77 years, and that of his wife 72.

Robert Nichols settled in the county as early as 1823, and improved a farm, some distance from Salem, and lived on it till he died in 1836.

William Marshall came to the county about 1823, and established his home north-east of Salem. He afterwards purchased the improvement of William Nichols, where he lived several years. He was one of the first teachers in the county, having taught school here in the winter of 1825; was a man of mirthful disposition, an accustomed to attend all the parties of the surrounding settlement. He was a good fiddler, and would play all night for the merry gatherings:

While the music loud and tender grew,
The dancers quick and quicker flew.

He was Justice of the peace, and united in the bonds of wedlock many of the rustic youths of that early day. He at one time represented the county in the State Legislature, and was also the first County Surveyor, and filled this office many years. He reared a large family and died in Carrigan township.

John Eddington was one of the early prominent men of the county. He was a man of fair education, and filled the office of County Commissioner. He settled on a farm in Tonti township in the year 1823, and lived there till he died.

James Chance came to the county in 1823, and cleared up a farm a short distance south of where the Baptist church now stands, in Carrigan township. He was Sheriff of the county from 1850 to 1853 and from 1855 to 1858, and during these two terms of office resided in Salem. He was a man of excellent reputation and very worthy citizen. His family was large, and his widow, who was a daughter of Robert Nichols, has survived him since Jan. 1, 1866, when his death occurred.

Jeremiah Gilmore settled in the county during the year 1823, and improved a good farm, where he lived till he died.

In 1824, John Cunningham, a native of Todd county, Kentucky, came with his parents to Illinois, and settled on a farm in the edge of Walnut Hill Prairie, near the county line, their farm lying in Marion Co., and their residence being in Jefferson Co. The family consisted of nine children, of whom four still survive: three daughters and one son; the latter being now a highly esteemed citizen and a prominent merchant of Salem. His father's name was Matthew. The latter removed from Walnut Hill to a farm in Rome prairie, and in May, 1878, died at the residence of his daughter in Salem, aged 84 years. Mrs. Sarah Cunningham, mother of John, died of cholera in 1834.

John Bundy came from North Carolina to this state in an early day, and settled at first in Jefferson county, and afterwards removed to this county. He had a family of eight children, the eldest of whom, Isaac, born in 1828, has been a minister of the gospel for twenty years.

Reuben Chance was born in Bedford county, in the year 1801, and in 1825 became a citizen of this county. He reared a family of ten children, six of whom still survive. His son, S. S. Chance, the present County Clerk of Marion county; another son, J. O. Chance is Clerk of the Supreme Court at Mt. Vernon; and a third, David D., is a resident of Macou county, Ills. Reuben Chance died in Sept., 1880, at his residence, seven miles south-east of Salem, where he had lived thirty-five years. Mrs. Catharine Chance, his wife, died at the old homestead in April, 1877. Mr. Chance and family were among the best and most respected citizens of the county.

Henry Howell emigrated from Tennessee to Illinois in 1826, and settled on a farm in this county, where he continued to reside till the time of his death. He reared a large family, some of whom

NOTES ON TALK WITH MARY BRUBAKER WITTNER

I talked to Marry Ann Brubaker Wittner, Austin, Texas, on 31 June 1976. Mary Ann is a granddaughter of Mary Pursley, who was a sister of Alton's grandfather, William Darrell Pursley. She knew her grandmother Mary Pursley Greathouse, and talked to her uncles and aunts about the Pursley family. She has been doing research for several years on this family. She is the one that told me that William D. Pursley was born in Salem, Ill., which is in Marion County, Ill. I had found a William Pursley on the 1818 and 1820 Bond County, Ill. census, as you know, and he was the only Pursley listed in Ill. at that time, so he had to be our William D.'s father. Later Bond County became part of Marion County. I found Lydia Pursley in Marion County on the 1830 census, and on the 1840 census with John Pursley. This John Pursley must be the one that came to Texas, and was in Walker County in 1850, married to Jane (?).

Mary Ann has an uncle, Clyde Duncan Greathouse, son of Mary Pursley, that has worked for years on the Pursley and Whitley and Greathouse family histories, and collected much material, but they had nothing beyond William D. Pursley, born 1820 in Ill. But her uncle Clyde and other members of the family said that they remembered someone in the family telling them Wm. D. was born in Salem, Ill. and that he used to go back to Ill. and buy horses after he came to Texas. She said that her grandmother, Mary Pursley Greathouse, said that she had cousins in Ill., that she wrote to, in Decatur, Ill. She mentioned Ella Shuffler, a cousin, that her family lives in Alma, Ill. She mentioned a Rosa Logan, 1324 E. Moore St., Decatur, Ill. (Don't know what relation). She said that one of her grandmother's sisters (also Wm. D.'s) Lydia Jane Pursley Leinwebber, had a daughter named Bathsheba that married Jim Robbins. They had a son named Sale Robbins and a daughter, Wilma. Sale lived in Eden, Texas.

She said that another aunt, Sarah Elizabeth Pursley, Garrett, was born in Washington County, Texas (b. 17 November 1847).

She also said that Bathsheba Whitley Pursley (Alton's grandmother) had a sister named Katie (Catherine) Whitley, that married a Smith, and another one that was named Mary Elizabeth Whitley that married a Smith. Catherine Whitley married John Alexander Smith, but according to records I have, Mary Smith married Martin Whitley, brother to Catherine and Bathsheba Whitley.

She also told me that Maude Pursley, Rt. 1, Box 55, McNeil, Arizona, has a Pursley bible. It must not be William D.'s bible, because I know that my sister in law, Nina Pursley, Austin, Texas, has it. I do intend to write to her and see. She was married to William Darrell Pursley, a nephew of our William D. Pursley.

Jean, I know you won't be interested in the Whitley information, but just wanted to keep it all together, what she told me about the family. I am going to write to Clyde Duncan Greathouse and see if he remembers anything about any brothers and sisters of our William D., your Grun B. and John. They would have been his mother's brothers and sisters, so surely he does know something about them.

William Pursley, who settled on section 14 in 1820, but did not enter any land until 1823, in which year he entered the west half of the northwest quarter of section 14. He deeded the land to his wife, who was Miss Lydia Little. She was the heroine of the rescue of Thomas Higgins in his desperate encounter with the Indians. The following is an account of the fight as given by Governor Reynolds in his pioneer history of Illinois:

"Thomas Higgins was born in Barren county, Kentucky, in 1790. He came to Illinois with his relatives in 1807, and located on Silver creek, near the Bradsley's. He received a very limited education, as his parents were in humble circumstances, and he himself was not much in love with a school-house. He possessed a good mind, but would, in defiance of danger or anything else, employ himself in harmless mischief, yet he was as brave a man as ever existed. He was in his manhood, very strong, muscular and active. He was not so very tall, but compactly formed for great strength and activity. During the whole War of 1812 he was actively engaged on the frontiers in defending the settlements. I personally knew him to be a member of the company commanded by Capt. William B. Whitesides, in most of the war. In 1814 he joined another company and was one of the party under command of Lieut. John

August, 1814. Indian signs were discovered near the fort, and next morning at day-break, Journey and party mounted and went out to reconnoitre the country. They had not marched far before they entered an ambuscade of a large party of Indians. The warriors fired on them and Journey and three of his men were killed instantly, William Burges and John Boucher wounded, Boucher slightly. The horse of Higgins was shot in the neck and fell to the ground, but soon rose again. Higgins remained a moment "to get a pull at them," as he said. He took deliberate aim at an Indian and shot him dead. He then mounted his horse and was about to return to the fort, when a familiar voice hailed him from the grass, and said, "Tom, you won't leave me?" Higgins hollowed out to him to "come on." "I can't, my leg is smashed to pieces," answered Burges. Higgins dismounted instantly and was getting the wounded man on his horse, but the horse scared and ran off. Higgins told Burges to limp off on three legs and he would protect him. Burges crawled off through the grass and saved himself, while Higgins was left behind to fight the most bloody and terrible battle that ever the same number of men—three Indians and one white man—were engaged in. Higgins had loaded his gun, as soon as he had killed the Indian, and was ready for the enemy again, but all at once three Indians

...and had lost much blood, was weak and almost exhausted, had an empty gun and no other weapon. He was near many Indian warriors besides the two pressing on him, who were armed with spears, tomahawks and knives, and were strong, having lost no blood, nor were they wounded as Higgins was. They gave Higgins many flesh wounds, as his shirt and body were literally cut to pieces. One of the Indians threw a tomahawk at him, cutting his ear nearly off, and laid the bone of his head and side of his neck entirely bare. This blow knocked him down, and when they rushed on him with their spears, he kicked them off. When one of the Indians presented his spear at the breast of Higgins, while he was stretched on the ground, he caught the spear and the Indian pulling it, raised Higgins up by it. Then it was that he took his gun and literally knocked the brains out of one of the Indians. This blow broke the skull of the Indian and likewise Higgins's gun. It was shattered to pieces, and the barrel was bent. Then he had but one Indian to fight, but he was nearly exhausted. During most of this fight, it was in sight of the fort, and a woman—a Mrs. Pursley, became excited, and said she could not stand to see so brave a man as Higgins murdered by the Indians. She mounted her husband's horse, and started to his rescue. The men in the fort could not see a woman go alone and followed her. torn down and rebuilt is now doing duty as a barn, is occupied by the residence of his son, Harmon Foster. I have seen many men who when young hauled grain and drove turkeys to St. Louis and Belleville from this place.

"On North Fork creek about eighty yards from the bank and a half mile of Patoka and Foster town line can be found the faint outlines of an old well, dug about the year 1818. Where the house stood can yet be seen. In plowing over the spot last spring I found many pieces of dishes of the blue flowered style. This was the residence of Mrs. Mary Jones, grandmother of Fountain, M. L. and E. W. Jones, and from whom all of the name of Jones in our township descended. She was born March 1, 1771, and died Christmas day of 1847. I have seen two of her sons, and in tracing lines of descent of different families I find that she is the ancestor of nearly all in Foster township. She is buried at Sandy Branch I have seen her grave; it is well kept and well marked. Within a few rods of this old house site an Indian trail crossed the creek. It is yet very distinct in as many as three different places in the course of a mile. It lies in a southwest direction and passed very near the Doolen school-house. Northeast of the school-house about three-fourths of a mile is a stone of considerable size, hollowed out basin-like, where the Indians made meal. I have seen many persons who played around this old Indian mill. I myself have searched for it. It is in a small tract of woodland; it is supposed the creek (Bear creek) changed its course and buried it. It is more than likely the trail led by this spot. The early settlers of this township were southerners; Foster, Holt, Mrs. Jones, Arnold, all originally from Georgia. Foster and Holt both married daughters of Mrs. Jones. At the present time no less than nineteen grandchildren of this woman are living. Later came others from Kentucky and Tennessee.

We wish to thank Mr. Doolen for his letter and say if others had done likewise, every township might have had a better representation.

TONTI TOWNSHIP.

Tonti township was named from the Chevalier De Tonti, a contemporary of Joliet, and was one of the early French explorers of Illinois. It is north of Salem and its survey numbers are town 3 north, range 2 east. It has no towns within its borders and is crossed in the southeast corner by the Chicago branch of the Illinois Central Railroad, having one station, Tonti, a hamlet of four or five houses, a store, a saw-mill and a fruit warehouse.

The first settler of Tonti township was TRIALS AND HARDSHIPS OF THE PIONEERS—SKINS AS A CIRCULATING MEDIUM—THE WAR OF 1812 ITS EFFECT UPON THE SETTLEMENT OF THIS PORTION OF THE COUNTRY—MURDER OF COX AND HIS SON—THE BLESSINGS OF PEACE—PROGRESS OF EMIGRATION—BUILDING OF CABINS—EARLY MANNERS AND CUSTOMS—PIONEER COURTSHIPS AND OTHER SOCIAL EVENTS.

"Oh, the waves of life danced merrily,
And had a joyous flow.
In the days when we were Pioneers,
Fifty years ago!"—Gallagher.

FROM the time the first settlements were made in what is now Bond County until the close of the war of 1812, money was scarcely ever seen. Skins of the mink, muskrat, raccoon and deer composed the circulating medium of the country. Tobacco, powder, lead and whisky were the principal articles purchased, and the merchant or grocery-keeper when asked the price of any of his goods, replied by stating a certain number of skins per pound or gallon.

A story is told of a party of fellows on a Christmas spree, who, finding themselves about out of whisky, and not having the wherewith to replenish, hit upon the following expedient to obtain a supply: They went one night to a little grocery, having one raccoon skin with them. This paid for whisky enough to furnish them all a drink or two round, including the proprietor, who of course was fond of the article and imbibed rather freely, soon becoming quite hilarious from its effects. The party observed this and each one, on placing the liquor to his lips, merely tasted it, but the grocery-keeper, whenever it came his turn, took a good drink; consequently objects soon began to assume a confused appearance to his vision. This was just what they wanted, and getting him "about right," as they expressed it, one of them slipped back where the pile of skins lay, took one and put it through a large crack in the wall of the hut, to the outside; then going out at the door he went round, took up the skin, and after waiting a few minutes came in—being saluted by the others as a fresh arrival, and presented his raccoon skin in payment for a certain amount of whisky. This offer was readily accepted, the whisky measured out and the skin thrown back on the heap with the rest. This feat was repeated every few minutes till they obtained all the whisky they wanted, having actually sold the grocery-keeper his own raccoon skin six or seven times in a few hours. After the close of the war money was brought into the country and gradually took the place of skins.

At one time during the war Hill's Station and Jones' Fort were abandoned, on account of Indian hostilities, and all the white inhabitants left the country except one man named Kenson, generally called "Old Kenson." There is no account given of this man "showing whence he came or whither he went," but we are told he loved the spirit, but whether he was born of it or not is quite another question. He was as impervious to the angelic smiles and charms of the softer sex, and had never realized the truth, that "The world was sad, the garden was a wild.

And man the hermit sighed till woman smiled."

but lived in the enjoyment of single blessedness, in a large hollow sycamore tree, situated in Shoal Creek Bottom, near where the Vandalia Railroad now crosses. "Old Henson" remained alone in this primitive residence to look after his hogs and hunt, returning to his tree each time by a different route, to avoid being tracked by the Indians. He stayed there unmolested until the rest of the people returned to the neighborhood, after which no further trace of him can be found. But the presumption is that he joined some band of Rocky Mountain trappers, spending his life in the wild seclusions of the land of sunset.

While the war of 1812 was in progress, but few emigrants came to the county, and these settled in the vicinity of the forts, or stations, on account of the hostile incursions of the savages. Occasionally a settler erected his cabin, and made a "clearing" at quite a distance from the station, remaining there with his family as long as there were no signs of Indians about, but as soon as they made their appearance in the neighborhood, he would remove, with all his responsibilities and household goods, into the fort for safety, returning home when the danger had passed. Families thus situated moved to and from the forts, perhaps, several times in a year, and, while living at their homes, were in constant danger of being attacked by Indians; yet they appeared contented, and in the enjoyment of more happiness than seems possible, under the circumstances.

There was a man named Cox, who, in spite of the warnings and entreaties of others, persisted in staying at home instead of coming with his family, into Hill's Station, the savages being then encamped on Indian Creek, four miles nearly west from Greenville. His house was near Beaver Creek, a little below where Dudleyville is now situated, and several miles from the station, but he insisted there was no danger. As a result, however, of his imprudence, the Indians attacked his house one day during his absence, stole several articles of value, captured his daughter, Sally Cox, and carried her off with them. Intelligence of this melancholy event reached the station in a few hours. A party of men was instantly raised, the savages pursued, overtaken, and the girl rescued and brought back safe to her parents, all within the space of twenty-four hours from the time of her capture. After this occurrence, Cox was willing to remove his family to the fort, especially in times of imminent danger, but, notwithstanding the remonstrances of others, he would go out to his house once or twice a week, "to see how things were getting along." On one of these occasions he was accompanied by his son, a small boy, both being on horseback.

When they came within a short distance of his residence, he sent the boy to water their horses at the creek, while he proceeded on foot to the house. As he approached he noticed Indian tracks, which aroused his suspicions, but being a brave man he went on, almost fearing to enter. The savages were concealed in the house, standing on both sides of the door with rifles cocked and presented, ready to shoot him the moment he entered. He came up to the door, and on opening it, was shot by an Indian and instantly killed. They then ran down to the creek where the boy was, and gave him to understand they would not hurt him, that they only wanted the horses. Being greatly frightened he endeavored to ride toward them, or hold the horses so that they could come near enough to take hold of the bridles, but the poor animals were so alarmed at the Indians he could not manage them. Hence, quite a struggle ensued; the Indians trying to get to the horses and they struggling away from them, while the boy was using every exertion to hold them, no doubt thinking his life depended on his efforts to do so. In this manner they gradually got farther from the creek, when, suddenly emerging into the prairie, the boy thought to escape, and started off at a rapid pace. The Indians perceiving this, one of them leveled his gun and shot the little fellow off his horse as he ran. The house in which this tragedy occurred was standing but a few years since.

The particulars of the murder of Cox and his son were related by the Indians themselves, at the treaty made near the close of the war. He was a large, powerful man, an experienced Indian fighter, and had sent many a "brave" to the "happy hunting grounds." Had he certainly known they were concealed in the house, it would have cost them many lives to have taken his, for he was considered a match for two or three Indians at any time. Most of them knew him, and acknowledged that, as they watched through a small crevice in the house, and perceived, from his looks and actions, that he had discovered their tracks, and yet was boldly approaching the door, they felt afraid of him, although ten to one in numbers.

An incident occurred at Jones' Fort, about the time Cox was killed, which is of interest in this connection. At a little distance from it stood a large elm tree, which at the height of several feet separated into three prongs, all branching out at the same distance from the ground. Each of these being very large afforded sufficient shelter to conceal a man standing in the space thus formed. An Indian, observing this, conceived the idea of climbing up into the ambuscade thus furnished and shooting at persons inside the fort. From this elevated position, he could see over the wall and fire on the people, which was impossible from the ground. One evening, near sunset, he ascended the tree and took his station; soon the report of a rifle was heard and one of the men in the fort fell dead. This was so sudden and unexpected that no one could tell from whence the firing proceeded, though all were satisfied it came from an Indian concealed somewhere outside the inclosure. This was repeated on several evenings until four or five white men had been shot down without any one being able to find out the whereabouts of the murderer. He was finally discovered, however, in his hiding place, and shot by a man watching for him.

Another attack by Indians took place at Hill's Station in the latter part of August, 1814. As there have been several versions of this fight already published it is but proper to mention that the following statement is in no particular derived from any of them, as they are not entirely correct. It coincides with them, however, in many of its details. It is obtained direct from persons now living who had the scene described to them by those residing in the station at the time of its occurrence, besides from the statement of the hero of the conflict himself, and may be considered reliable.

A few rangers, under the command of Maj. Journey, were stationed at the station in order to afford the settlers better protection against the savages. Benjamin Henson, a resident in the station, while out hunting one day, saw an Indian, which circumstance he related on his return in the evening, adding that he believed they were in danger of an attack. This story was discredited by many, both officers and men, who believed he had manufactured the whole thing merely to get up an excitement and alarm. On the evening of the day in question some of the women found grains of parched corn scattered about the spring, situated a little distance from the station, and as none of the white people had been using any at that time, this was conclusive evidence that the "red skins" were about.

Strange as it may seem, however, some of the rangers still refused to believe that there was any danger. One Lieut. Boucher, on hearing Henson's statement, called him a liar to his face, and treated with contempt every suggestion of danger.

After disputing and quarreling awhile over the matter, they decided to send out a squad of men on the following day to look for Indians.

Next morning Maj. Journey started out, taking all the men with him, thus leaving the fort in a defenseless condition, the gates all wide open and the women milking the cows, apparently unconscious of danger. The party of rangers proceeded along a narrow path leading down a narrow ravine, when they were suddenly fired upon by a large party of Indians, concealed behind trees and in the grass on both sides of the path. Maj. Journey, Capt. Grotz and two of the privates, — Lynn and William Pruitt, were instantly killed. The fifth man, — Thomas Higgins, was shot in the thigh and fell from his horse, which ran off. The others, seeing danger ahead, left the path immediately, scattering in different directions and taking positions at some distance from each other, managed to engage the enemy as best they could. Having seen Higgins fall from his horse with the other four, they supposed him killed also, and took no further notice of him at that time. There was a small field of corn close to the fort, on the north side, in which several Indians had concealed themselves, for when the firing commenced the women saw three or four run out of this field and pass round to the scene of conflict. They had doubtless been watching the whites, intending to commit some depredation as soon as the men all left. Immediately after Higgins fell from his horse he was attacked by three Indians armed only with spears, evidently believing him entirely within their power. His wound had disabled him so that it was with difficulty he could stand without support, but the knowledge that his life was at stake seemed to give him super-human strength. Cocking his rifle, he presented it, whenever one approached nearer than the others, as if intending to shoot, determined, however, not to do so until he could make sure of his game. The Indians, being uncertain whether his gun was loaded or not, were afraid to rush on him. Thus he held them at bay for a short time; but they kept circling round trying to get on both sides of him, each time coming a little closer and closer, whirling about in various ways or falling down flat in the grass and weeds whenever he seemed likely to fire. Occasionally one gave him a thrust with his spear, when they would all laugh to see him dodge and writhe with the pain, but were afraid to advance near enough to take hold of him. He still reserved his fire knowing that his only chance for life was to kill one "dead" at the first and only shot he would get. He said that one of them was the "biggest Injun" he ever saw, and he thought if he could only kill him first his chance for life would be much better. At length feeling himself growing weaker, and receiving a severe wound in the mouth and jaw from the spear of the largest Indian, who also was the boldest, Higgins leveled his rifle at him as he pulled the spear from the wound and fired, killing him dead on the spot.

The other two, knowing that his gun was discharged, now advanced on him without fear. His success in killing the most formidable one inspired him with fresh courage, and not having time to reload his rifle, he seized it by the muzzle, and as they rushed upon him with loud and triumphant yells, struck the foremost one with all his power over the head, knocking out his brains and killing him immediately. The force of the blow broke the gun off at the breach and the barrel flew out of his hands to some distance in the thick grass.

He now fell exhausted, and being unable to rise to his feet, commenced crawling toward the gun-barrel, his only means of defense, in order to obtain it before the remaining Indian, who had also started to search for it. The savage succeeded in getting it first, and with a tremendous yell, came slowly up in front of him, brandishing the weapon in his hands, as if to give him all the anguish possible, before striking the final blow. Having reached a small tree, he raised himself by means of it to a standing position, leaning back against it for support, feeling that his time had come when, to his great joy, he beheld two white men—William Pursley and David White—on horseback, coming to his rescue. They were coming up behind the Indian, who was too much elated with the idea of capturing his victim to observe them. As soon as Higgins saw them he exclaimed, "Pursley, for God's sake, don't let him kill me."

The Indian still believing no one near, and that this was a cry of despair, laughed tauntingly in his face, and mimickingly repeated his cry in bad English. The words had scarcely passed his lips when the men were upon him with rifles leveled. Instantaneously he commenced a series of the most vigorous and ludicrous gymnastic exercises, but they finally succeeded in killing him.

A portion of this fight was witnessed by the women in the fort, and one of them—Mrs. White—when she saw Higgins likely to be overpowered, seized a gun, mounted a horse, and started to his assistance. She had not proceeded far, however, when, perceiving Pursley and her husband hastening to his relief, she returned to the fort. Higgins was taken to the station, where his wounds were dressed and cared for until his recovery. He died, a few years since, in Fayette County, having been a perfect specimen of a frontier man in his day. He was once assistant door-keeper of the House of Representatives of Illinois.

Such are the scenes through which some of the pioneers of Bond County passed during its first settlement. Our citizens should cherish the memory of those victims who fell at Hill's Station, Jones' Fort, and other places in the county. Their graves lie neglected, and some of them unknown. This ought not to be. They should all be found, if possible, neatly inclosed, and a monument erected to their memory.

At the close of our last war with England, a treaty of peace was made with the Indians as well as with the English, thus bringing peace to the pioneer. After the conclusion of this treaty, the forts in Bond County were abandoned, though with some misgivings on the part of the whites, lest the Indians should fail to observe the terms of peace. In a short time, however, the people becoming more satisfied of the peaceful intentions of the savages, "scattered out" from the different stations, forming settlements several miles apart.

Emigrants came to the country but slowly, so that by the year 1816, Bond County numbered not over twenty-five dwelling-houses, if their pole cabins could be called dwelling-houses. The people then managed to get along without nails, glass, sawed lumber or brick, for the reason they could not procure them. Their houses were small, consisting of one story, built of logs or poles, in many cases unbewed, with the ends projecting from six inches to two feet at the corners, the crevices between them being daubed with mud or clay, and the whole structure covered with clapboards, held on by heavy poles called "weight-poles." The same kind of boards, fastened to cross pieces by wooden pins driven into holes made with a gimlet, constituted the door shutters, generally constructed to open outwards. The floor, when they had any, was made of puncheons, pinned down or laid on loose. These, when carefully dressed and closely put together, constituted a very good floor, but some of them conveyed the idea that the settlers believed in ventilation, for they left cracks so wide that the children, in pursuit of their juvenile amusements, their little feet often slipped through those dangerous trap-doors, causing many squalls and bruises. A wooden latch, raised by a string, served as a fastening for their doors. This string had one end tied to the latch and the other passed through a small hole above it, and when the door, fastened on the inside, was left hanging out, the person wishing to enter having only to pull it, in order to raise the latch; hence, to leave the "latch-string hanging out," they considered synonymous with sociability and hospitality. They built wooden chimneys, plastering them inside with earth, making the jambs and hearths also of the same material—except when stone could be procured—beating the hearths with a maul to make them solid. The fire-places were from six to ten feet in width, and two rocks or billets of wood served instead of andirons. Though so wide, these fire-places were, nevertheless, quite convenient, furnishing a receptacle for most if not all the cooking utensils of the family, and when crowded the children, and in some families the dogs found accommodations on each side, in company with skillets, ovens and frying pans. But at one side or the other of these capacious hearths, one article always stood conspicuous, and that was the kettle of "blue dye," as the old ladies called it, in which they colored their "yarn" for weaving. This kettle being covered with an old barrel-head, or something of the kind, often did service as a seat for some member of the family, and even for visitors. Young fellows, when on courting expeditions, sometimes found it a very convenient seat, with the "idol of their heart" in close proximity. Some of the best men of our country wooed and won their brides, seated on a kettle of "blue dye" by the blazing fire of the backwoodsman's rude cabin. An incident is related of a youthful swain seated on a kettle of "blue dye," engaged in close conversation with a lass, whose love he hoped to win, when the covering gave way, precipitating him to the bottom of the vessel in a sitting position. As he wore white pantaloons, the results may be imagined.

Articles of household furniture were few and rude. With the exception of those brought from the States, chairs could not for several years be procured, their place being supplied by wooden stools, which, though answering very well the purpose of seats, were easily upset, a circumstance often causing much merriment.

The tables and bedsteads were rude, the former being constructed of the same kind of material as the doors, and many of the latter by boring two holes in the wall with a large auger, six or seven feet apart; into these, pieces of wood were driven having the opposite end of each inserted into an upright post, this constituting a kind of frame work, which, being covered with clap-boards, served as a receptacle for the beds. Sofas, rocking-chairs, center-tables, bureaus and all such articles were not used except where some old lady or whimsical old maid had refused to part with these "household gods," and had then hauled out to this wild region, over mountains, hills and swamps, at much trouble and expense.

On the outside of the houses, it was no uncommon thing to see a goodly number of raccoon and deer skins stretched and hanging up against the wall to dry, and occasionally the skin of a wild cat, wolf or bear. The projecting ends of the logs at each corner of the cabin served as places to hang the various utensils used on the farm, such as hoes, rakes, bridles and harness.

MARCH MEETING

The Bond County Genealogical Society met Monday night in the Bond County Housing Authority building.

The president, Dean Anthony, introduced guests and conducted the business meeting. He mentioned that the Illinois State Genealogical Society will have a workshop April 23rd at the Illinois State Museum Auditorium in Springfield and the cost is $10.00 per person.

Mark Shaw talked about some of the families who lived at Hill's Fort. He showed a map of Bond County as it was in 1822 when it extended to the Wisconsin line. He also pointed out the location of Perrysville, the approximate site of Hill's Fort, Pope and Independence which might have been early settlements. The region was sparsely settled at that time.

Many early Bond County settlers spent time at the forts and block houses. The early fort in this area was Hill's Fort which is where the Indian battle took place. SAR is in the process of getting markers for the graves of the four men known to have died and buried near the fort.

As he researched these men, Mark found they were closely related to very early Bond County families and some of their descendants live in Bond County and are members of the Bond County Genealogical Society who were at the meeting.

Benjamin Henson, a first early settler, lived in a sycamore tree at the bottom of Mill Hill during the War of 1812. He took refuge in this tree during Indian attacks. He was a very rough character and no one knows what happened to him. He was not involved in the battle at Hill's Fort as he had spotted some Indian signs and left the fort. He married 11 Sept. 1826 in Bond County to Ruth Jane Dunn. Nothing is known of the Dunn family except they were tied in with old Madison County families as well as Clinton and Marion County families. There is a record in Bond County of a Morthera Henson marrying Marvel Hix on 2 July 1823. In old Perrysville court minutes several Hix's are mentioned. Also a Patsy Henson married John B. Taylor 13 Feb. 1821.

Apparently Morthera and Patsy were sisters of Ben Henson. Mark thought John B. Taylor was related to the Grigg family of northern Bond County.

A Pvt. Joseph Grotts was killed at the battle of Hill's Fort. There is a St. Clair County record of a Wm. Groats marrying Sarah Ball 23 Apr. 1798. He was a Corporal in Samuel Whiteside's militia in 1811. Grotts is spelled several ways it was found. There was nothing on the Ball family. Joseph Grotts father came with the Reavis family to Bond County so it is possible the Grotts and Reavis's were either relatives or friends. John Nowlan's records indicate a Solomon Grotts was at Hill's Fort. In Madison County there is a record of Catherine Grotts marrying John Grog in 1806. There are Grogs listed next to the Grotts in the Perryville court minutes when the county seat for Bond County was laid out.

Wm. and Lynn Pruitt died at Hill's Fort but nothing is known about them. However, there is much information about other Pruitts being related to other families here early. Solomon Pruitt is mentioned prominently in early Bond County court records. He married Rebecca Higgins Nov 1809 and lived at Hill's Fort. He did not die during the battle but he lost two close relatives, Wm. and Lynn Pruitt. A Martin Pruitt married a Dorothy Wagoner 12 Apr. 1810. The Wagoners lived in an early settlement that later became Sebastopol, south of Highland.

Many of these families came from Tennessee or Kentucky to southern Madison county or northern Clinton County, then to Hill's Fort. Some went to Vandalia and Marion counties. These settlers seemed to have "bounced" three times; they hit southern Madison County, Hill's Fort, Fayette County and spread out from there. They moved freely through the sparsely settled country.

Fields Pruitt married Hannah Hull 28 Aug. 1808. He is mentioned prominently with Solomon Pruitt in Bond County records and was probably a clerk at one of the first meetings. Many Pruitts are buried in Gullick Cemetery southeast of Highland and the tombstones are dated 1840-1850.

It is not known whether Rebecca Higgins was related to Tom Higgins who fought off the Indians bravely and helped save Wm. Burgess. Higgins was badly wounded and since the men at the fort were reluctant to rescue him., Lydia Pursley rode out to rescue him followed by her husband, Wm. Pursley, and the other reluctant men. Higgins was well cared for in the fort and recovered. He later moved north of Vandalia and was assistant doorkeeper of the House of Representatives there.

An early settler was Wm. Hill who emigrated from S. C. to Randolph Co., ca. 1803. He moved to Marion County in 1825. It is probable that Wm. Hill ties into the Hills at Hill's Fort. Isaac Hill originally surveyed the Hill's Fort site and the fort was named for him. He had a large family and the Hill name can be found in old Perryville court minutes. There are Hill descendants living in this area today.

There were Blacks at Perrysville.. When Wm. Pursley died, the family moved to Marion County before they went to Navarro, Texas to live. The Blacks followed the Pursleys to Marion County, then to Texas. There were Blacks at Hill's Fort who probably were related to the Pursleys.

Wm. Pursley was born ca. 1780 in S. C. He married Lydia Little before 1800 in S.C. They lived in Kentucky for a short time. It is thought Wm. Pursley's parents were John Pursley, a Revolutionary soldier, and Mary Black of York Co., S.C. Wm. and Lydia had 10 children: John, b. 1804 in Ky. who married Jane Bowren 3 Aug. 1830 in Marion Co., Ill. They had a child, Louisa, b. 1805 who married Eli W. Jones 7 March 1827 in Bond County. Jane d. before 1850 and John then married a lady by name of Elizabeth, last name unknown. Elizabeth next, b. ca. 1815 married Thomas J. Boring in 1830 and she is buried in the Boring-Allmon Cemetery north of Salem. Robert married Elizabeth Drewry in 1830 in Marion County. ~~Bathsheba married~~ Sarah was born 12 Sept 1815 in Bond County and married Mordecai Smith in 1831 in Marion County. Both are buried there. Sharf Whitley. She was born 20 Sept. 1829 in Bond County and is buried in the Pursley cemetery, location unknown. Sharf was married to Sarah Little, sister of Lydia Little Pursley. They married in Danville, Montgomery County, Tx. in 1844. Apparently the Littles and Whitleys were related to the Pursleys and were with them at Hill's Fort, then Fayette County and Texas. Nancy Pursley married Mordecai T. Ballance. The ninth child, a son, was Guoin or Gruin Black Pursley who married in Texas. His middle name was for his grandmother on his father's side. Fanny was the tenth child and she married James Hart in Madison County.

Nathaniel Journey is supposed to have led the men out from the fort that day of the battle to meet the Indians and they were ambushed. He was the first man killed and is buried in the Hill's Fort cemetery. Journey is actually pronounced Journe which was probably French.

John Journey was at the fort and lived through the battle. He moved over north of Vandalia with Tom Higgins. He settled in Sharon Township, Fayette County, Sec. 1 and owned 200 acres. He had a family. Fayette County people like to think it was John Journey and not Nathaniel who led the men to battle, but there is no record to support that claim. There are references that John was a major, but there were no records to support that claim either. All records found indicate that Lt. Journey led the men and it is possible John became a major later. In Madison County there is a record showing that a John Journey married Mary McAllilly 8 Apr. 1824. The McAllilly's, when the Swiss settlers came to Highland in 1837, were living where the Highland City Cemetery is located. There were several cabins there which the Suppingers bought. There are still McAllilly descendants in the area. In the estate papers of John Journey, his wife is listed as Elizabeth. Either he married more than once or there was confusion over the name. John Journey had a son, Nimrod, who died young leaving his estate to his mother since there were no children apparently. He had married Jane Stapp 11 Dec 1831. John Journey is buried in either Sharon or Watwood cemeteries in Fayette County. His grave is not marked. Many of these men were here so early and died so young and are in unmarked graves. The only ones to be found are Isham Reavis and Wm. Burgess.

The Journey's had moved from Hill's Fort in 1820 according to the Fayette County census. They are not there in the 1830 census and some of them died in the 1830's. Apparently they were moving around between Bond, Madison and Fayette Counties.

Wm. Burgess is the namesake of one of our townships and was so named about 1870. All of his children moved out of Bond County. Burgess was most likely born in Kentucky in the 1790's. He married Elizabeth Delilah Reavis in Kentucky and came with the Reavis's when they settled in Bond County. Elizabeth was born in N.C. in the 1790's and died in 1839. Wm. then married Annis Kirkham, a widow. The Kirkhams were an old Pocahontas family, but no one knows whether Annis was part of that family. There were children: Franklin, Thomas and Sarah but they were not named Kirkham. It is possible these were her children or Wm's or Wm and Annis's children. Wm. filed his will 14 Feb. 1853 and it was probated Apr. 21. His tombstone indicates he died 19 Apr. 1853. He had quite a lot of land when he died which is surprising because most of these men did not end up very wealthy even though they were here early and supposedly staked out the best land. He willed it in pieces to some of his friends and Tobias File. Known children of Wm. were Wm. Burgess, Jr. who married Mary Jane Lucas in Bond County in 1843. Wm. Jr.'s second married was to Catherine L. Pollett 17 Sept. 1844. Wm. Jr. died before 1853 and there is an estate settlement for him. The Polletts are an old Pocahontas family. Wm. Jr. and Mary, his first wife, had a daughter named Almeda. A second son of Wm. Sr. was Henry, who died in Grant, Wisc. where he and his family lived. Henry's children were John Henry, Joseph Martin, James Franklin and a daughter, Harriet Leona Burgess who died in 1858. There is an estates settlement for her in Bond County. Wm. Burgess Sr. also had a daughter Mary or Polly, born 28 June 1811 in Humphries County, Tenn. She died 21 Apr. 1860 and is buried in the Burgess or Ethridge cemetery just south of Millersburg and near Wm. Burgess. This cemetery is also called Wilde. She married Charles Johnson, the son of the father of all the Pocahontas Johnsons. Charles was a brother of the well-known Ben Johnson who laid out Pocahontas and served in the Legislature. When Polly died, Charles married Sarah Travis and they moved to Vandalia where he became quite prominent. The children of Polly and Charles were Elizabeth, Delilah who married Dr. Alex Bowman, Charles Franklin who married Sarah O'Dell who died in Vandalia in 1888, James Henry, who served in the Civil War and was married to Maria Roth. Wm. Burgess served in both Capt. Whiteside's and Capt. Jacob Short's regiments as a ranger in the War of 1812.

Thomas Higgins was born in Barren Co., Kentucky in 1790 and came to Illinois in 1807. He lived with relatives, according to an early Fayette County history. He died in 1836 north of Vandalia and is buried on the west side of the road across from the State Farm where the Superintendent lives. This was part of his land. His grave was marked with a brass plaque in the 1950's by the Daughters of 1812. The plaque was lost and in 1962 a monument was placed there. According to a recent Highland history, the Higgins settled first south of Highland on Silver Creek, just at the Clinton County line. They moved to Hill's Fort, then to the present Ramsey Township by 1816. Higgins moved to Fayette County ~~he married a woman named~~ with a man named Valentine Brazil who was later convicted at Perrysville for co-habiting with a lady. She is listed as the defendant and her name was Miss Nancy Journey, a relative of Nathaniel and John. There is no marriage record for Valentine and Nancy. Higgins signed up with Corporal Samuel Whiteside in 1811 in St. Clair County and served with him off and on through 1814-1815. He received a pension for his war service. Apparently in the 1820's, Tom and other war veterans would go up to Galena periodically to work in the mines to raise some money. He got into a dispute up there with someone and they had a duel with rocks. They each had an equal number of rocks, paced off, counted out, turned and fired a rock. Higgins had a deadly aim and the other man finally fled for his life. Tom was married to a lady named Temperance. Her last name is unknown but she could have been a Journey as Major John Journey was the executor of Tom's estate, which was only about $300. When Tom died, she married Rev. Levi Lowry 13 Sep 1836. Tom was in a court case at Perrysville in 1820 against Frederick Phelps, who brought him up on charges of trespass, assault, battery and maiming. It seems Higgins on 27 Jan. 1820 with force and arms assaulted the said Phelps at Perrysville and then and there spit in Phelps face and with great force and violence seized and laid hold of Phelps nose, greatly squeezing and pulling it. Then he pulled large quantities of hair from the head of Phelps and beat him with a stick about his head, face, breast, back, shoulders, arms, legs and diverse other parts of his body. Higgins then threw Phelps to the ground, continued kicking and beating him and bit off one of Phelps ears. He then tore up Phelps clothes valued at $100. Phelps was lame, sore, and disordered and remained so far a long time. Higgins was sued for $1,000. When the case was brought to court, Higgins kicked and beat Phelps again. Consequently Phelps won the case.

Mark found in a copy of Fayette Facts an inquiry for a Wm. H. Higgins, born 1813 in Illinois, died 1865 and his wife was Priscilla Journey, 1815-1867. She was born in St. Clair County.

Tom Higgins had sons John, Clayborne B. , a daughter Alcie who married Levi Reed 13 Feb. 1837 in Vandalia and a son Richard. There are descendants of these children.

Willard Saunders of Hannibal, Missouri is a descendant of both Higgins and Journey.

Thirty persons came with the Hills and Pursleys. They were 9 weeks enroute to Illinois and once lost the road causing them to go four days without food.

During the period of 1810-1813 a series of massacres were committed by the Indians of the Illinois Territory upon citizens of the Louisiana Territory. There is a muster roll of Samuel Whiteside's company when he was an Ensign and it includes Wm. Pursley and his brother John.

In the Bond County courthouse there is a pension record for a James Little who was 61 years old in 1826. He could have been the father of Lydia (Little) Pursley. There are Littles in the Perrysville court minutes and a James Little is mentioned. If this is so, when the Hills came from S.C. they brought with them the Pursleys, the Blacks and the Littles.

Mr. Nowlan's records show the enlistment records for the War of 1812. He found Wm. and John Pursley with Ensign Samuel Whiteside in Aug. of 1812. Wm. Pruitt and Nathaniel Journey were in the company of 39 men commanded by Wm. Pruitt in the 3rd Battalion in 1811. John and Wm. Pursley along with Wm. Pruitt, Wm. Burgess and Wm. Grotts were together in 1812. Wm. Pruitt was with Samuel Judy's company and there was a Judy who married a Pruitt in Madison County. Judy is an old Madison County name. In Capt. Jacob Short's company, Nathaniel Journey is a Lt. Wm. Burgess, and Field and Joseph Pruitt are all in this company. It seems these men all moved around in the militia and of course knew each other and were related by marriages. In Wm. Joseph's company, May 9, 1813, Solomon Pruitt was a corporal. along with this group were Wm. and Easley Stubblefield, John Lindly, John Green, Field Pruitt, Martin Jones, Abraham and Wm. Bateman, Charles, Abraham and Peter Tedricks, Henry Green, John Green, Robert and David White.

$25 BOUGHT HAYS FIRST COURTHOUSE

SAN MARCOS, Jan. 28 (CTS)—Ninety-five years ago this fall Hays County received its first building designed exclusively for a courthouse, and it cost county residents $25.

True, construction costs were lower in 1861, but not that low.

Actually, the $25 was paid for "the best set of plans submitted" in an invitation to citizens to draw up courthouse plans.

The $2,000 to build the two-story 40 by 36 foot structure was courtesy of a murder trial defendant. The case was moved from Travis County to Hays County for trial, this in 1858. When the defendant failed to appear for trial, the $2,000 bond money was forfeited.

But before construction could begin on the courthouse, a squabble arose about the location of the county seat.

Hill country residents, in the majority at the time, resented having their courthouse so far from the center of the county. So, led by William Cannon, they
